TRUE STORY OF THE STAMP TRADE'S BIGGEST PROBLEM

The solution wasn't obvious, but with your help (Collectors) – would it work?

Managing Director Andrew McGavin of Universal Philatelic Auctions explains:

Twenty years ago, and I suspect the same is true today, the typical stamp dealer's biggest problem was not what sold, but what would not sell. In those days mail-bid postal auctions would parcel up their unsold lots (unsolds) and sell them on to other auctions which hopefully had different collectors in their database to whom such material would be new.

In this way they would "release" funds in order to be able to purchase new stamp collections. Other auctions not participating in this exercise would spend a significant proportion of their describing time in re-describing "unsolds" in order to re-present them as "new."

The significance of re-cycling/re-presenting material should not be underestimated – too high a proportion of unsold material stymied dealers from purchasing new stock – a problem many collectors may recognize today when re-visiting suppliers who never seem to have something new to offer: ultimately collectors stop going back to dealers who offer only stale stock.

In essence a dealer selling the best stamps out of any collection he or she has purchased may cover costs, but the profit in any typical collection lies in slower moving stock which is more difficult and takes longer to sell.

Try as they might, there didn't seem to be a satisfactory solution, although today many dealers use eBay to clear unsold stock even at a loss.

Universal Philatelic Auctions (UPA) puzzled long over the problem, seeking to turn a "negative" into a "positive." The breakthrough came when its Director took the view that if it was not selling it must be too expensive. This soon led to the conclusion "why don't we reduce the estimate (and reserve) until sold or given away" – after all – everything must be worth something, and if not it should be given away to make way for new stock ... and so ... twelve years ago ...

The Universal Unique Reducing Estimate lot system was born

In 1999 a 6,500-lot UPA auction was created. The director agonized – “would it work?” No dealer or auction, to his knowledge, had ever done this before. Would collectors hold off from bidding and wait until the next auction when the estimate was lower? – or, worse still, the following auction – when the estimate was reduced even lower? Would collectors pass up the first opportunity at new stock and wait – and, if so, for how long?

It was a tense few months, but in the end the director need not have worried. There were 650 different collectors who bid in that first auction, spending £65,000 (US $100,000+). Collectors who saw something they really wanted would bid first time. But, what of the unsold stock – did it sell? Universal had done something never seen in stamps before, or since – it actually told collectors in subsequent auctions how many times a lot had been unsold – so that collectors could work out how much it had been reduced by from the original estimate ...

... and did the unsolds sell? Collectors bid on the unsolds in following auctions – so that sometimes an unsold lot reoffered actually sold for more than available before.

And now, some 12 years later, we come to today. UPA runs quarterly auctions with approximately 17,000 lots in each auction and over £700,000 (US $1,000,000+) of stamps from all over the world offered – including Thematics, British, US, and most countries of the world. Today UPA holds the United Kingdom record for the most stamp collectors bidding in a single auction – 1,491 different collectors – collectors who live in all corners of the world ... and yet, surprisingly, 9 out of 10 bidders are successful due to the auctions' significant 17,000+ lots size. Could you be one of them?

DALE'S DIALOGUE

Dale Smith, ATA President

Organizational Cooperation is Vital

As you will read in this issue, the National Topical Stamp Show 2017 was a resounding success. It was held in Milwaukee, Wis., where ATA was founded nearly 70 years ago. All of the hard work of the NTSS show committee, ATA board members and the contribution of efforts by the philatelic clubs in Milwaukee paid off in what I feel was one of the busiest NTSS shows in years. More than 400 attendees were registered over the three days.

But a significant event occurred during our Annual Meeting with members on Friday, June 23. The leaders of the American Philatelic Society and the American Topical Association announced that they will co-host next summer's large national philatelic show scheduled in Columbus, Ohio. This event will be held Aug. 9-12, 2018.

The time has come for philatelic organizations to start working together to reduce duplicated expenses, enhance strengths and grow the hobby.

APS Executive Director Scott English and ATA President Dale Smith shake hands after inking an agreement for a joint APS-ATA show to be held next August in Columbus, Ohio. The show will feature elements of both the APS Stampshow and ATA's NTSS.

We can maintain our organizations' autonomy, yet combine our efforts to expand our hobby's reach. All of us need to increase members in our organizations and make stamp shows more attractive to larger groups of collectors of all kinds. Many classic and country stamp collectors also collect topicals. And the reverse is true where many topical collectors also may collect a country or a large variety of exhibition materials. A show like this could appeal to a broader population of collectors.

This is an effort to combine resources, lower show costs and bring together a larger group of volunteers that make these events happen. Our two organizations comprise the largest philatelic membership in the world. A joint show such as this has never before been done.

The ATA show chair and his committee will be working closely with APS leaders to make this a great stamp show. I predict that in the future we will see many such efforts. We already see Stamp and Coin shows. Perhaps there will be postcard, paper ephemera, first-day cover collectors and some of the larger shows around the United States through combined efforts.

Now I want to list the various actions that your board of directors decided at its meeting in Milwaukee. Your board:

- Recognized the value of the ATA judges' accreditation process in the past, but declared it to be no longer necessary.
- Voted to support CANEJ (the APS Committee on Accreditation of National Exhibitions and Judges) and to participate in its thematic/topical education for judges and exhibitors.
- Authorized special fund drives for specific purposes in the future.
- Discussed the comments made on last year's membership survey and began plans to act on many of them.
- Recognized the tremendous contribution by Robert Lamb in implementing, running and financing TopicalsOnLine website (our internet sales service), but also recognized that it has not been financially successful, so other options will be explored.
- Decided to implement priorities of the Revenue Planning Committee, including an increase in the cost of checklists to match the office expense in providing them to our members.
- Called for committees to do the following: 1. Develop international relationships. 2. Plan Boldly To The Future fundraising efforts. 3. Promote sponsorships of ATA programs. 4. Do background work for publication of handbooks. 5. Choose site, dates and format for NTSS 2019.

In closing, I want to mention that I appreciate hearing from our members. My contact information is found on page 4 of this journal. ☎

Rare & Collectible Foreign & Topical Stamps From Over 250 Countries

Your Enthusiasm is Showing

At this time of year, when the leaves are ready to flaunt their bright colors, we are aware of nature's bounty: trees in the orchard laden with crisp apples and pumpkins stacked and ready for jack-o'-lanterns – and pies.

At ATA we are reminded each and every day of the enthusiasm and support of our members for our hobby and for the mission of ATA. This encourages all of us to work together to keep our member services going, but also to dream, innovate and take on new projects.

One thing we know for sure: Enthusiasm for topical collecting is growing! We read about it in philatelic publications and hear about it at shows. Our checklists have encouraged many people to take on a topic, even if they have scores of country albums on their shelves. People are discovering what we've known since ATA was founded in 1949 – topical collecting is fun, and anyone can do it!

Gifts to our BOLDLY TO THE FUTURE campaign keep the ATA office humming and also support publications, checklist services and more. Please consider making your donation today. It's easy to mail a check or add a bit extra to your membership renewal or order for checklists or other items. We also welcome your ideas and suggestions as we work together for a better ATA.

ATA's budget depends on your gifts. Every dollar you give helps to reach our goal! You can send your 2017 gift in any of these ways:

- Check drawn on U.S. bank in U.S. funds (preferable because it saves us fees) payable to "ATA," PO Box 8, Carterville IL 62918-0008 USA.
- PayPal - to americantopical@msn.com - preferable if you pay electronically.
- Debit/credit card – At PayPal.com – send money safely and securely to americantopical@msn.com. One can also donate on the website even without a PayPal account.

If you do not use the internet, you may supply your credit card information to ATA.

ATA is a 501(c)(3) organization. Each donation is tax deductible for U.S. taxpayers and is acknowledged with a "tax letter" acceptable to the IRS.

Together we can continue to advance...

A Winning Publication

Congratulations to Topical Time editor Wayne Youngblood. Topical Time received a Gold award in the APS StampShow 2016 Literature Competition, and a Vermeil in the Chicagopex 2016 competition. This fine publication, and its talented editor, have won many awards over the past 68 years.

Bigger and Better All the Time

The ATA checklist dATABse continues to grow, thanks to the hard work of Dominic Sgro and Beth Scully, our checklist coordinators. In July, updates and new items totaled 6,944! In this issue of Topical Time, you'll find the annual publication of our complete checklist listings. Check out your topics to see how they've grown! If you don't find your topic listed, ATA can customize a checklist for you. As an example, if the large butterfly list is more than your budget allows, we can supply a list of only Monarch butterflies. Contact the ATA office, american topical@msn.com for information.

Now on the ATA Website

The ATA now offers website advertising, as well as an advertising package that includes Topical Time and the website. This is a great way to publicize your stamp show, study unit or other philatelic event. Dealers will also find this an ideal way to reach collectors. When shopping for stamps, check out the dealer ads by clicking on the box marked, "Our Online Advertisers."

Positions Open

ATA has an opening for the position of Webmaster, as Amanda Morgenstern is pursuing other opportunities after nine years with our organization. Occasional graphic design work will also be needed. These positions can be combined or held by two different individuals. Call ATA President Dale Smith at (816) 734-4536 if interested.

Volunteers Needed

ATA needs your help in filling these volunteer positions. We will provide assistance learning the job, and support in fulfilling this position. If interested, please contact Dale Smith at (816) 734-4536.

Coordinator for Advertising Marketing. We need someone with experience to contact potential advertisers for Topical Time and our website. Volunteer needs to spend time contacting current and potential customers to expand our advertiser base.

Facebook Coordinator: Access ATA's Facebook page every day or so; post ATA info as available and monitor the page for misuse and errant postings.

State compilers. Do you collect your state? We are working toward establishing a topical checklist for every state in the United States. We need an individual from each state who is willing to compile a checklist of their state. You will be given some direction from a project coordinator and copies of research from a member of the Americana Unit. If you already collect philatelic items from your state you would have a head start.

International Outreach. This notice goes to our many international members: We need your support and advice. We are forming a committee within ATA to develop international relationships, and form a council of ambassadors in other countries to help them grow their organizations and hopefully add members to the American Topical Association. If you would like to be part of this effort please contact us.

VERA'S VIEWS

Vera Felts, ATA Executive Director

State Checklists on Tap

New State Checklist Project. Thanks to new ATA member Mike Vagnetti, (you'll remember the article about his family project related to Michigan philately in the last issue of Topical Time, Page 57) ATA is embarking on a checklist project that was originally designated for a few years from now. To date, our checklist dATABse has listed stamps for only a couple of U.S. states. Those lists were incomplete and hadn't been expanded for a while. Our new state checklist initiative is underway – and we are depending on you to help!

You can contribute your knowledge of stamps related to your state. If you have assembled a small – or large – collection of state-related stamps, you may have their Scott numbers and/or other information in a handwritten or computerized list. Or maybe you would enjoy putting such a list together to contribute to the upcoming new ATA checklist for your state. You can send it in any format you have, but it would be helpful to use the Excel or Word format provided on the main page of our website at www.americantopicalassn.org. Send any available info to: atastatechecklistproject@gmail.com.

Mike Vagnetti has volunteered to monitor this new email account and organize the information we receive according to individual states. We are seeking volunteers to coordinate and combine the information submitted for each state into that state's checklist. If you would like to be a checklist coordinator for your state (or any other), please volunteer by emailing the previously given address or by contacting the ATA Office. The ATA will forward to you all of the accumulated material for your chosen state, along with a blank database template to use. You'll receive a fancy "title" and lots of thanks – and the knowledge you have helped ATA and other topical collectors by helping construct a state checklist. And you'll receive "OJT" (on-the-job training/help) with what is needed.

One of ATA's active life members (for 59 years, now!), Clarence Wagner, is already contributing greatly to our state checklist project. Clarence paid the grand sum of $50 in 1958 to be a Life Member of ATA, and we are grateful that he continues to "pay it forward" by actively contributing to BTTF and now to our state checklists. Clarence has been a longtime member of our Americana Unit and enjoys finding international stamps with connections to American states. He has agreed to contribute each of his 50 spreadsheets with information about stamps for that topic, and much of his information will be incorporated into the new ATA state checklists. What a wonderful gift to ATA!

Recently, noted philatelist John Hotchner mentioned in a Linn's Stamp News column that there has been a lapse in the production of books about postage stamps and U.S. states. With the assistance of ATA members, our checklists can help fill the void of information available to those interested in topical philately as it relates to their state.

A Historical Cover. Thanks to ATA member Greg Ciesielski for his recent donation to our organization's archives of an early ATA cover. The cover commemorates the 10th Anniversary of ATA and is postmarked on Feb. 2, 1959, and was mailed to Finland. There is a receiving backstamp from Helsinki dated Feb. 6, 1959. A search has not turned up any early ATA members with the name Uno Siberg of Finland. Perhaps the cover contained information sent by the ATA Office in answer to an inquiry about the organization. Or maybe Mr. Siberg was considering advertising in Topical Time – there were more than 70 advertisers in each issue in the late 1950s! Our thanks to Greg for the donation of this interesting relic from ATA's history!

NTSS 2017 – A Fine Memory! “Thank you” does not seem enough to write to the dozens of volunteers who helped produce our excellent show in Milwaukee. All of us in ATA owe our show chair John Hamman a huge debt of gratitude for his organizational skills. It goes without saying that John is a “detail man” of the first degree; his engineering training, when applied to NTSS, turned a good idea into the finest of memories. John’s “unpaid” show secretary, Dawn, was with him during each step of the multi-year process of producing “Brewing Up Topicals.” We are grateful to them, and to each person who contributed time, energy and money to the show. Thanks for helping make ATA the fine organization that it is!

I also want to thank the dozens of ATA members who wrote letters and emails, and who called our office with congratulations upon my selection as Distinguished Topical Philatelist. There have undoubtedly been more deserving recipients, but never has anyone been more grateful than me for the nice recognition of my work for you. Thanks to you for being a part of ATA and helping to make such an award possible. □

WAYNE'S IMPRESSIONS

Wayne L. Youngblood, Topical Time Editor

Copyright Law & Digital Image Use for Authors and Editors

[Author's note: This article is being published in several more-or-less non-overlapping publications as a service to authors, editors and website owners and developers. It is not a comprehensive piece on copyright law, but does address one area that arguably raises the most questions.]

As a professional philatelic author and editor for more than 30 years, I have been fairly deeply involved with copyright law in different aspects, having dealt repeatedly with various types of problems related to the reproduction of philatelic images. While I am not a lawyer, and this is not intended as legal advice (and should therefore not be used as your bottom line), this article should provide you with some general guidelines and focuses on what you can reasonably expect and what is reasonably expected of you when dealing with digital art. If you have any questions regarding a particular situation, however, you should always consult an attorney with experience in copyright law.

Please note that the following addresses only the situation of a philatelic author in its broadest sense to include bloggers as well as authors of philatelic articles or books. The reproduction of copyrighted images for sale or to make first-day cachets for sale, for example, raises other issues not addressed here, as does reproduction of items for financial gain.

It has always been my preference to illustrate columns, articles and features with material I own. However, recognizing that to tell a specific story that's not always possible, it is necessary to occasionally use other sources of illustrative material. There are many sources, including friends; research sites, such as the Library of Congress and others; eBay; and numerous other online resources. Regardless of source, your first responsibility is to assess whether the image you've found online is of a high-enough quality for print reproduction (if print is your goal). Many are not.

But how do you deal with a situation when the only available philatelic image is subject to a copyright, whether owned by a postal authority or a private party, or if a copyright or some form of "licensing" is claimed by a website owner?

First and foremost: The vast majority of stamps – and all covers – are in the public domain. Most stamps are produced by government entities with public funds, so copyright is frequently not an issue. As for covers, these are artifacts of postal processing. As such, they cannot be copyrighted unless, for example, they utilize original artwork. Those stamp designs that are copyrighted (such as modern United States postage stamps since 1980) are generally covered by fair use if you are using them to illustrate an article. Under section 107 of the Copyright Act, the fair use doctrine provides that the reproduction of copyrighted material “for purposes such as criticism, comment, news reporting, teaching (including multiple copies for classroom use), scholarship, or research, is not an infringement of copyright.” All other issues aside, most philatelic writing would fall under this category.

As for rare stamps and covers (even unique ones, such as the Penny Magenta British Guiana), simply owning a postal artifact does not entitle one to either ownership or control of all images or depictions of an item. This was attempted by one well-known collector/lawyer in the late 1980s and early 1990s, and it failed miserably by virtually any legal litmus test.

Thus, for philatelic purposes, unless there is some form of original work involved, such as a montage of images or an artist’s original artwork, we are generally free to write about and depict most any item we wish – from virtually any source – regardless of boilerplate warnings and other scarecrows found on websites. Specific permission for publishing reproductions of scanned stamps or covers is not a legal requirement.

That having been said, however, this does not give us free license to ride roughshod over the hard work others have expended in scanning and posting material. Anyone knowingly using material from either private or commercial websites without acknowledging their origin is doing themselves and the hobby a disservice. Those who scan and post material online have expended a great deal of time and effort, and they deserve both the acknowledgment for that effort and whatever publicity comes with it.

If an individual posting simple scans of covers or stamps online truly wishes to “protect” the images they use (that is, prevent reuse by others), it is fully their responsibility to either watermark those images or otherwise deface them to discourage use by others. Again, ownership of a philatelic artifact does not entitle one to ownership of all depictions of it. The most important fact to remember, whether dealing with your own or others’ work, is that copyright rewards originality, not effort.

As mentioned previously, stamp images themselves cannot be copyrighted by anyone other than by the issuing authority. In the case of stamps created utilizing any public funds (as is certainly the case with duck, waterfowl and other similar government-issued stamps), they are – quite simply -- forever in the public domain. Even when images can, in theory, be copyrighted, such as U.S. postage stamps released from 1971-80 (1980 is when the “new” USPS, which doesn’t use public funds, began copyrighting stamp designs), a retroactive copyright cannot be claimed – even by the rightful owner.

The stamps shown here are not copyrightable, nor are images of them. However, this mini-mail tableau shows enough originality that it could – possibly – be protected under the U.S. Copyright Act.

While there is little question that those who created these images have invested considerable time and effort (the so-called “sweat of the brow” argument), these scans are – in fact – not copyrightable. The “sweat of the brow” concept has long-since been rejected repeatedly by the U.S. Supreme Court (ref. Feist Publications v Rural Telephone Service Company, 1991). The same issue has been visited by other court cases, such as Bridgeman v. Corel (1999) and several others – virtually all of which argue that faithful copies of public domain works do not warrant their own copyrights, regardless of whether they are text or image based. Virtually every legal case that has ensued since has not become more liberal towards the copyrighting of scans. Again, copyright rewards originality, not effort.

Essentially, simple scans do not involve any form of original authorship, which would perhaps subject them to protection. Thus, if you were to set up a still life, for example, of a rare duck stamp, a decoy and a potted plant, you would be demonstrating, or “creating,” a form of original work from a non-copyrightable image (the duck stamp). This is otherwise known as a “derivative work,” and it would probably be subject to copyright, although not necessarily. In essence, you have added to, or modified, the item significantly enough to create an “original” work, rather than a simple reproduction.

A scan on the other hand (regardless of how good) does not reflect any original work related

Now, let's deal with reproduction (mechanical, electronic or any other media) as it relates to philatelic artifacts: Most items offered on websites, or those appearing on research sites, are simple scans; that is, true reproductions of the original artifact. They are not “derivative” works (an important word we'll cover shortly).

xx secret, on the other hand (regardless of how good), does not reflect any original work related to a non-copyrighted design and is therefore not entitled to any legal protection.

Now, despite this seemingly green light, it is my feeling that it would be ethically (although not legally) wrong for anyone to knowingly garner the fruits of another's efforts without attribution.

If you are contemplating utilizing a scan or other non-original image from a website, it is always a good idea to attribute their work. This is both common sense and an important courtesy. You may even wish to contact the site's owner to let them know of your intent, although you may meet resistance with this approach from some. While you may technically be "in the right," some website owners or managers are very touchy about reproduction, or may be misguided about protection to which they feel entitled. You may or may not wish to push this issue too far.

On the other hand, it has been my experience that many website owners and developers are quite cooperative and will even send high-quality images if requested and assured that full attribution will be given.

As an editor, I cannot and will not attempt to police images used in contributors' articles. I am neither ethically nor legally responsible for enforcing a common or professional courtesy. Ultimately you need to decide what is necessary to provide as illustrations, as well as how fully you extend your personal and professional courtesy in obtaining necessary images.

1. It is always best to use either material you own or that is clearly intended for restriction-free reproduction.
2. Many online images do not contain enough raw information to be suitable for print publication (low resolution).
3. Many websites either claim a copyright or some form of "licensing." While copyright protection does apply to a site as an overall creative work, it does not apply to simple scans of stamps or covers found on that site.
4. The vast majority of stamp designs are not copyrighted – or copyrightable, and virtually all covers are in the public domain. Copyright rewards originality, not effort.
5. If an owner or author of a website truly wishes to "protect" the images found on it, then it is his or her responsibility to visibly "watermark" or otherwise deface them to discourage reuse.
6. Even if an image is copyrighted, you may be entitled to reproduction in philatelic writing under the "fair use" doctrine of the Copyright Act.
7. It is never appropriate to "borrow" an image from a website without proper attribution. While not a legal requirement it is a vital and important personal and professional courtesy.
8. In many cases, the owner of a website may be willing to provide a high-quality image for reproduction if requested and assured that attribution will be given.

I hope this not-so-short refresher course can help all involved with philatelic publishing achieve a simpler and more rewarding experience in providing interesting

Non-Philatelic Collectors Club Learns About Philately in Fort Worth

The Fort Worth, Texas, Collector's Club, founded in 1969, is composed of about 25-30 individuals who each has an interest in collecting, but none of whom listed stamp collecting as one of their subjects of interest. The current officers could not recall ever having had someone speak to their group about stamp collecting. One of the group had heard Ray Cartier speak on his collection of aircraft stamps and covers to another group at the B-36 (Bomber) "Peacemaker" Museum and suggested that the club invite him to speak to the group.

In response, Ray agreed, but told them that his wife, Karen, would share the presentation, introducing club members to topical stamp collecting. The joint talk went over very well, with 10 of the members picking up information on joining the ATA, along with obtaining information about collecting stamps that tied into their own varied collecting interests. Eight members picked up flyers announcing the upcoming Mid-Cities Stamp Club Expo. They were promised free admission and parking, as well as a chance to see exhibits and meet with stamp dealers to find stamps tying into their collecting interests, which include

About the Cover

This attractive philatelically themed postcard was printed by A. Vivian Mansell & Co., Fine Art Printers of London, and reproduces an original design by Linda Edgerton (1890-1983). Edgerton was a popular illustrator during the early 20th century who specialized in children, child development and play. In addition to creating dozens of postcard designs, she also illustrated several children's books (and wrote a couple), as well as designing nursery chinaware. This is the only philatelic card of hers we've been able to document. It dates from around 1920, when Edgerton created most of her card designs. □

Single-page humorous exhibits were passed around for helping listeners better understand how stamps and covers can be used to convey information.

following the presentation, who were interested in those topics. Rather than using an overhead projector for a smaller group, Ray showed color enlargements of significant space and aviation-related covers and allowed members to pass them around as well. He gave the club a space cover canceled at Cape Canaveral on the date of the Apollo 11 launch (July 20, 1969) as a door prize. The winner was very happy with this unexpected gift.

Is there a general collectors group in your area? Why not locate a group, go to one of its meetings and tell members a little bit about topical collecting? If you are up to speaking to a small group, offer to give a short presentation about your topical collection. You'll probably find a very receptive audience and possibly help add to the ATA membership at the same time. ☐

George DeKornfeld

Flowers on Postmarks

[Editor's Note: We are quite happy to report that George DeKornfeld is back with us, after recovering from a serious illness.]

Two major surgeries, two less-than-major procedures, two hospitals and a medical center, a nursing home (twice), rehabilitation, physical therapy and – after nine months of hell – I'm finally home. What is hell? Aside from the obvious (as mentioned), hell includes being separated from the confines of one's stamp den and beloved stamps and covers. Hell is missing the stamp shows normally attended each year and the camaraderie that goes with them. And no internet for weeks on end ... so it was a long, difficult ride and there's a long road of rehab ahead, but hallelujah, I'm back amongst the things that keep me going.

Of the few things that helped keep me from losing my mind during this past nine months, two tend to stand out. One was the hobby periodicals, such as Topical Time, that seemed to appear just when I really needed something to take my mind off of my situation. The other was the cards and flowers I received from relatives and dear friends. Not at all hard to look at and carrying a pleasant aroma, the flowers that showed up in my various rooms in hell always cheered me up and lifted my spirits. It is with this in mind that I thought that in this issue we should take a look at some pictorial cancels that portray flowers and blooms. (I bet you thought the topic was going to be "hell." Nope ... I've had more than enough of that for now, but maybe some other time.)

Figure 1 starts us off with an example from Australia, a 1998 first-day pictorial used to cancel a pretty stamp depicting a raft of Champagne Roses with the marking nicely mimicking the blooms found in the stamp. Here "champagne" refers to the color of the roses which, according to the American Rose Society's website, denotes effervescence, vitality and devotion.

stamp from the left, an Ipomoea pes-caprae, aka (and appropriately named) the Beach Morning Glory (Figure 2).

A quick stop in Canada brings us to Figure 3, where we find a handsomely simple marking, another first-day postmark, used in Ottawa in 2004. Although I'm not normally a huge fan of stylized pictorials, this one grabs me as it matches the subtle, yet eye-catching, clean lines of the flowers in the stamps.

A nice example of concor-

One year later, Australia issued a colorful set of four stamps depicting some of its breathtaking Coastal Flowers. Here our first-day pictorial, applied at the Batemans Bay post office in the southern end of New South Wales, emphasizes where these blooms can be found by including a couple of seashells along with a flower that seem to mimic the third pictorial cancel appears as Figure 4, yet another first-day (“esimene”) marking (which seems to be trending here), this one from Estonia in 2006.

Rarely seen as a country of interest in these columns are the Faroe Islands, but not so this time. Let’s look at a couple of pictorials from this Danish archipelago in the North Atlantic. Figure 5 is a marking used in the capital, Tórshavn, in 1988. This pictorial is of a simple and basic design but serves its purpose well enough. Figure 6’s example is a tad more intricate. Also used in the capital, this time in 1999, this pictorial was used to cancel a pair of Bible story stamps, the lily commonly representing the purity of Jesus Christ within Christianity.

Old Blighty is our next stop and, as is normally the case for Great Britain, we have some pretty stamps and pictorials to view. Since we’ll be looking at four examples, to save space let’s go to a list format:

Clearly, flower pictorials are a cinch to find, as loads of different countries issue them. This should come as no surprise since few of us turn our noses up at this attractive topic. In the spirit of including as many examples as possible, let's finish up again with a list format.

So, that's it for this issue. It's great to be back ... great to be able to be back! My heartfelt thanks to Wayne who filled in during my absence (like he doesn't already have enough to do)!

And, as usual, let's close with an on-topic smile:

clothes off and streak through that stupid flower show!"

"You're on!" said the other old lady, holding up a $5 bill. The first little old lady slowly fumbled her way out of her clothes. Completely naked, she streaked (as fast as an old lady can) through the front door of the flower show.

Waiting outside, her friend soon heard a huge commotion inside the hall, followed by loud applause and shrill whistling. The smiling, naked old lady came through the exit door surrounded by a cheering crowd.

"What happened?" asked her waiting friend. "I won 1st prize as Best Dried Arrangement." ■

Jean-Michel Bertrand

Dawn Hamman

Jean-Michel Bertrand experienced a stamp collector's worst nightmare when his 30-year collection of hot-air balloons and airships on stamps was destroyed by fire. The Black Forest Fire in Colorado in 2013 was the most destructive fire in the state's history.

"I gradually started to feel the need to restart a stamp collection," he recalled. "My wife loves orchids, and we are growing orchids in our greenhouse. Orchids on stamps was an easy choice."

While most ATA members start with an ATA checklist and go from there, Jean-Michel loves research, and took a very scholarly and thorough approach.

"I started by going through all the Scott catalogs to establish a base. I am now reconciling that list with other sources," he explained of his massive project. "The last stage will be to compare with the ATA list. Hopefully I can submit the updated list to the ATA."

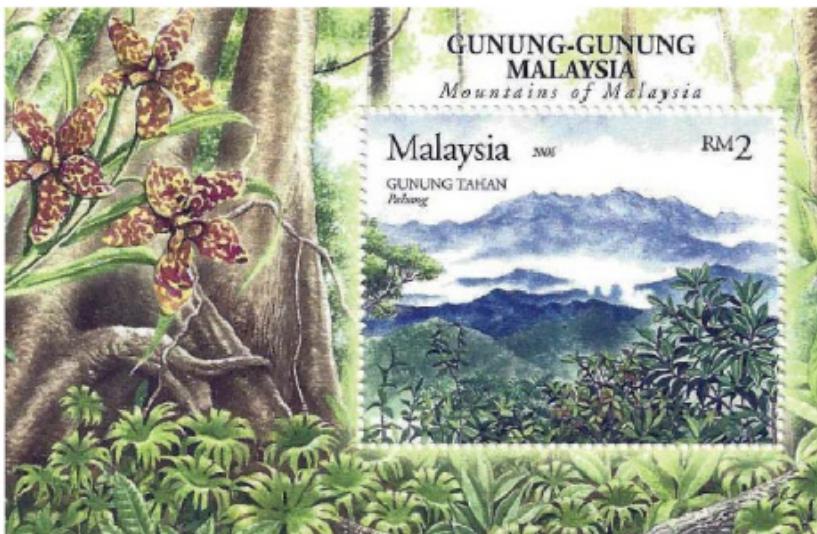

Along the way, there have been plenty of challenges. In consulting the Scott catalogs, he found that many stamps are not pictured. "They are easy to miss!" he soon saw. Also, he has found many errors in identifying the orchid shown on the stamp correctly.

For now, he organizes his collection by country. But, he has become quite knowledgeable in identifying orchids, which is satisfying, and most likely helpful in the greenhouse, too. "To me, the most enjoyable part is the research on the topics," he explained. With the number of stamps depicting orchids (well over 5,000), his challenges continue.

"Collecting (acquiring) is the easiest part, in my opinion. It depends on how much money one can spend on it!" he said. We all relate to that.

Like all topical collectors, Jean-Michel has other topic ideas simmering on the back burner: gems & minerals and turtles. But that will be in the future, as he

Confederate Stamps in Your Collection

Jack André Denys

If you collect post-1937 United States stamps, you collect Confederate stamps. Let me explain.

Confederate General Robert E. Lee (1807-70) is depicted on six U.S. stamps. Confederate Lt. General Thomas “Stonewall” Jackson is on three. Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy, is on two. Several other Confederates appear once, on the 1995 Civil War pane. All of these stamps were issued before the current controversy over Confederate statues and memorials.

The first U.S. stamp to picture Lee, Scott 788.

4¢ gray value of the Army Series (Scott 788), issued at Washington, D.C., March 23, 1937. It shows Jackson, Lee and the latter's birthplace, Stratford Hall, near Montross, Va. (The home is open to visitors.)

There was controversy over this stamp. Linn's Stamp News of March 13, 1937, notes: “Postmaster General James A. Farley is apparently trying to calm the irate Southern Colonels by issuing the coming four-cent stamps... in gray ink.... Much protest was aroused in the south over the issue of the current 3¢ Army stamp depicting [Union leaders] General Sherman along with Grant and Sheridan. Farley is paying a nice compliment to the old Confederacy.... Printing the stamp in Confederate gray should go far toward soothing the injured feelings of our southern brethren....”

The second stamp depicting Lee was a blue commemorative (Scott 982), issued April 13, 1949, in Washington, D.C., for the bicentennial of Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va. The stamp portrays both of its namesakes and the main building of a Colonnade, designated as a National Historic Lee graduated second in his class at West Point and, after distinguishing himself in the Mexican-American War, served as superintendent of that Academy. A moderate, Lee was discontented with radicals on both sides of the North-South controversy. But, believing he owed his first loyalty to Virginia, he resigned his U.S. Army commission and became Commander of the Army of Northern Virginia.

The first stamp showing Lee was the Landmark District.

The 1949 Lee stamp, Scott 982.

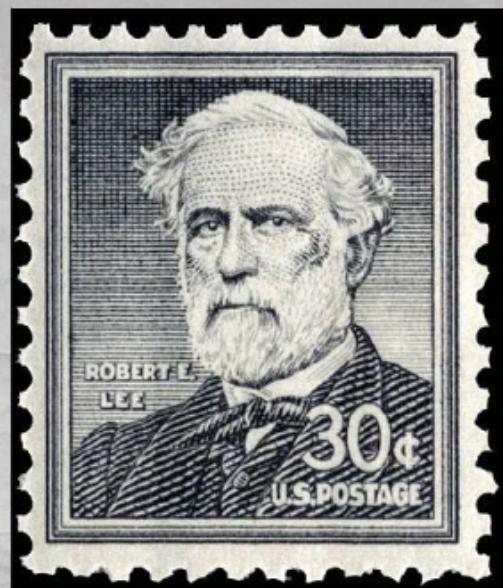

Founded as Augusta Academy in 1749, the school was renamed Liberty Hall in 1776 and then Liberty Hall Academy six years later. It became Washington College in 1796, when George Washington made a $20,000 gift, saving it from bankruptcy. Immediately after Lee's death in 1870, the school was renamed Washington and Lee University. (The school's Colonnade was also depicted on a 20¢ postal card - Scott UX302 – minus the portraits.)

The university's motto, Nōn Incautus Futūri', meaning "Not unmindful of the future," is an adaptation from that of the Lee family. Lee was president of the university from 1865-70. He lived and died in the Lee House – where the president still lives – and is buried in Lee Chapel, together with his wife, five children and his horse, Traveler.

"One of the southern state's [sic] all time heroes will soon be seen on a U.S. postage stamp after two previous appearances." Thus began Linn's Aug. 22, 1955, issue's announcement of the third Lee stamp, a black 30-cent, eighth in the Liberty series (Scott 1049). Issued Sept. 21, 1955, opening day of the APS convention in Norfolk, Va., the stamp depicts a portrait similar to the 1949 commemorative. According to the U.S. Post Office Department's Postal Bulletin, the likeness of Lee "was reproduced from two prints obtained from the Library of Congress. One, identified as a Brady print, showing Lee in uniform, was used for his facial features and the other was taken from a negative owned by L. G. Handy of Washington, D. C., was used for the civilian attire."

In the extensive biography included in this issue, Linn's wrote: "Lee was earnestly opposed to disunion, had given his own slaves their freedom, and regarded the institution of slavery as 'a moral and a political evil in any country.'" President Lincoln had offered Lee the command of the Federal army. Lee turned it down. "Lee wrote later, 'I declined ... stating as candidly and courteously as I could, that, though opposed to secession and deprecating war, I could take no part in an invasion of the southern states.”

The fourth U.S. Lee stamp shows Stone Mountain Memorial, a huge carving on the side of a mountain near Atlanta, Ga. It depicts massive equestrian figures of Robert E. Lee, Jefferson Davis and Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson. Begun in 1923, the carving was completed in 1970. A black 6¢ commemorative (Scott 1408) was issued on Sept. 19 that year at Stone Mountain.

The sculpture was originally planned to only portray Lee, but its designer, Gutzon Borglum, envisioned a carving with seven central figures accompanied by "an army of thousands." It was changed to the three existing figures. A dispute arose between Borglum and the managing association, causing Borglum to leave. He went on to carve Mount Rushmore in South Dakota (Scott 1011 and others).

Visitors can take a skyride to the top of the Mountain and get an up-close look at what its website calls the "the largest high relief sculpture in the world, actually much larger than it appears from the ground, measuring three-acres, larger than a football field. It towers 400 feet, measures 90 by 190 feet, and is recessed 42 feet into the mountain. Workers could easily stand on a horse's ear or inside a horse's mouth to escape a rain shower. The figures were sculpted with the detail of a fine painting.

thermo-jet torch." In the evening, viewers can see "the world's largest laser light show featuring a fantastic fireworks finale!" Clever and creative, it includes galloping horses, superimposed on the carving.

The fifth stamp depicting Lee was one of a pane of 20 multi-color 32¢ stamps issued in Gettysburg, Pa., on June 29, 1995, to honor heroes of the Civil War (Scott 2975). Lee is shown with Traveler in the background. The chosen honor-

This 1995 sheet honoring heroes of the Civil War was released June 29, 1995, and is balanced nearly equally between the North and the South. The Lee stamp is shown enlarged, front and back.

Statues of Robert E. Lee may be taken down, but millions of stamps depicting him remain. It is interesting to speculate on the public reaction if any of these stamps were issued today. But, regardless of our politics, we can escape from the world around us and retreat into the wonderful world of our little pieces of paper! ■ between the North and South. Confederate images are, in addition to Lee, Davis and Jackson: Gen. Joseph Eggleston Johnston, Rear Adm. Raphael Semmes, Diarist Mary Boykin Miller Chesnut, Nurse Phoebe Yates Levy Pember, Brig. Gen. Stand "Degataga" Watie and the battle of Chancellorsville. Printed on the reverse of the stamps are brief descriptions of each person's contributions. Lee's wording reads 'Army of Northern Virginia Commander 1962-65. Won Seven Days' Campaign, 2nd Manassas, Chancellorsville. Repelled at Gettysburg. Surrendered April 9, 1865. Became college president.' (The same designs were used for a set of 20¢ picture postal cards, Scott UX200-219, with each design serving as the card's picture.)

Most recently, the sixth Lee issue was a "Forever" stamp issued April 9, 2015, at Appomattox, Va., (Scott 4981). It was the fifth and last souvenir sheet commemorating the 150th anniversary of the Civil War. The stamp shows Lee and Union General Ulysses S. Grant shaking hands during Lee's surrender at Appomattox Court House, as depicted on an 1895 painting, Peace in Union, by Thomas Nast.

NTSS Was Highly Successful, Fun

Dawn Hammnn

Our 2017 National Topical Stamp Show is over, but we will have memories of the many great events for years to come. Let's just list a few highlights:

Right: Scott English presents a Nicholas G. Carter National Promotion Service Award to Jack Congrove. Dawn Hamman also received the award, and Amanda Morgenstern was awarded the Outstanding Young Adult Philatelist.

25- and 50-year members were recognized. Two new chapters were welcomed: Evergreen Stamp Club, Washington; and Buffalo Stamp Club, New York. ATA ambassadors received pins that they can wear when representing ATA at shows. Special thanks was given to retiring board members Bob Lamb and Larry Davidson.

We celebrated the birthday of famed thematic teacher and exhibitor, Mary Ann Owens, with a beautiful tribute by Jack André Denys, with ice cream and cake.

Then, it was time for food and fellowship again as the President's Reception served up traditional Wisconsin fare, including bratwurst and

A group of hardy travelers

Busy shoppers fill the tables of dealers at NTSS 2017 in Milwaukee, Wis.

The long-anticipated program by Barry Stagg, chair of the British Thematic Association, drew a crowd to hear about thematic collecting and exhibiting in England. Barry and his wife, Allison, joined in on many show activities.

Jack Congrove led us through the steps to create our own custom album pages. We'll offer this popular class again.

The awards banquet, always a festive evening, took on special meaning as ATA executive director Vera Felts received the ATA's highest award, Distinguished Topielers took a full-day trip after the show (Monday) to New Glarus, Wis.

supporter, Bob Mather, who was named Honorary Chair for the show.

Speaking of awards, the exhibitors were rewarded for fine work, with Phil Stager winning the Grand for The Wonderful World of Bamboo.

Another program that drew a big crowd was given by Ed Andrews, who also served as chief judge for the show. He spoke about the differences between topical and thematic exhibits, and undoubtedly inspired some to begin making topical exhibits.

Throughout the show, collectors enjoyed shopping with dealers offering lots of topicals, but also countries, covers and much more.

The success of the show was the result of hard work by many people – too many to mention. If you helped, please give yourself a pat on the back! ☺

A busy jury ponders the numerous stamp exhibits at the show.

Collecting Postal Stationery

*Your questions, comments and suggestions about topical collecting are most welcome.

What is postal stationery and where is it found?

There are many other “philatelic items” that can be collected in addition to stamps. In the May-June issue of Topical Time, the “Encouraging Exhibiting” column introduced the concept of elements and included a “Philatelic Elements Inventory Checklist.” One type of philatelic element is postal stationery – primarily postal cards, stamped envelopes, letter sheets and aerograms. What they all have in common is that they were issued by governments and have imprinted stamps (indicia) in the upper-right corner, indicating that a specific rate of postage was prepaid. (Note – “picture postcards” are not postal stationery – they are not issued by postal authorities and do not have preprinted stamps. That’s why philatelists call the philatelic items “postal cards.”)

Postal stationery is an important addition to topical or thematic collections because it often has pictorial design elements of topical interest. Mary Ann Owens said: “Postal cards are the best source of material for the topical or thematic collector.”

Here is a link to definitions and information about postal stationery:
www.linn.com/insights/stamp-collecting-basics/2000/january/what-is-postal-stationery-.html

Why should you consider collecting postal stationery?

- You can add some aspects of your topic that are on stationery but not on stamps.
- You have all the stamps for your topic.
- You can add variety to your collection.
- You are up to a new challenge.
- You are curious to find out what else exists in your area.

catalog of postal stationery covering basic material for the whole world. The catalog was published from 1964-86 and comprises 19 alphabetical volumes with supplements. Included are stamped envelopes, postal cards, lettercards, wrappers, aerograms and registration envelopes. Unfortunately, most of the volumes have not been updated for more than 20 years. Various volumes are listed in the catalog of the David Straight Memorial Philatelic Union Catalog: <http://catalog.stamplibrary.org/InmagicGenie/opac.aspx>. Specialty stationery catalogs of various countries have also been published.

For many years, Dalene Thomas wrote a “Topical Postal Stationery” column in Topical Time, featuring new issues. Back copies are available on the ATA’s TT digital archive: www.americantopicalassn.org/topicaltimearchive.shtml

Societies offer information

The United Postal Stationery Society (UPSS, www.upss.org) was formed in 1945 from the merger of the Postal Card Society of America, in existence since 1891, and the International Postal Stationery Society, founded in 1939. It offers publications on Canal Zone, Cuba, Liberia, Peru, Philippines and Puerto Rico, the USSR and the United States. Here is a link to the Society’s “PS 101” page asking “Should you be collecting Postal Stationery?” www.upss.org/code/ps101.php.

See the ATA’s Casey Jones Rail Road Unit link <http://alphabetilately.org/tops.html> for information about trains on postal stationery. The page also features a comprehensive illustrated list.

A sampling of topical postal stationery by country

Note: This is by no means an exhaustive list. Your corrections, suggestions or additions are welcome. Information about Russian and Romanian stationery and Japanese echo cards is especially needed.

Belgium

- Publibels, 1933-85, not listed in H & G.

The Belgium post office printed ads on the lower left on then-current postal cards for a fee and a minimum order. At least 2,790 different ads have been recorded. Cards were issued in Dutch and French. Mary Ann Owens noted that “They are a fertile source for the topical and thematic collector.” The Casey Jones Rail Road Unit provides a link that gives more info about Publibels: <http://alphabetilately.org/tops/belgP.html> (see illustration above).

The definitive catalog is Thema's op publibel / Thèmes sur Publibel / Themes on Publibel / Themen auf Publibel, by Thomassetti Ludo, Andre Delfosse Editeur, 1996 / 2003. It lists 2,790 items.

This reference is not listed in the David Straight Memorial Philatelic Union Catalog. But examples of Publibels can be seen on this link:

www.catawiki.com/catalog/stamps/printers/3393199-publibel

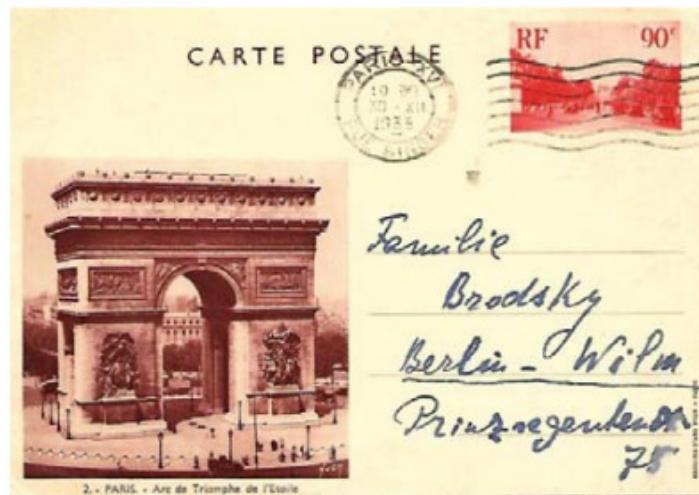

France

- “Editions d’art Yvon” (Editions of Art Yvon), a series from the 1930s of “Carte Postale” cachets showing French scenes, sometimes with matching indicia.

The Paris series contains at least 15 cards (see illustration at right).

- “Prêt à Poster” (PAP), 1994 to date. Prêt à Poster translates as “Ready to Post.” They are envelopes with printed indicia and “cachets” on their left side. More than 10,000 different ones have been issued, many “with locally-chosen added designs, and those can be bought only in the Post Office of the town of issue. Since they are locally issued, it is hard to find information about them. It works much like meters: any town administration or tourist office can ask the Post Office to add their design to some prepaid covers. These covers are sold inside the post office until they are sold out. Cost is a few cents more than buying stamp + cover individually.

and they are sold usually in packets of 10.” (Quoted from the Casey Jones Rail Road Unit, which again, provides information and illustrations, from the train topic perspective: <http://alphabetilately.org/tops/france-pap.html>). A multitude of topics are featured. My topic, the Bayeux Tapestry, for example, has seven examples. Some come in two sizes and with several different indicia. Sometimes the reverse of the envelope carries through on the theme (see illustrations above).

Germany

- Pictorial definitive postal cards were issued with the theme “Lernt Deutschland kennen” (Get to Know Germany). The first series was released 1926-42. A second series ran from 1952-99. An article, “The Pictorial Definitive Postal Cards of ‘Deutsche Bundespost’ 1952-99,” by Steffan Kober appeared in

Topical Time Nov.-Dec. 2012. A copy is available by sending a stamped, addressed envelope to the ATA Office. Kober notes that 5,506 different postal cards were issued. Many depict spas, casinos, cathedrals, castles, cars, railways, ships, planes, lighthouses, bridges and zoo animals, among many other topics (see illustration at left).

The Michel Ganzsachen Katalog Deutschland has comprehensive listings of German issues (Ganzsachen = postal stationery).

- Much German postal stationery was printed to order for commercial purposes. These items are non-acceptable in thematic exhibitions, but cover a tremendous variety of topics. They are listed in both the Pre-WWII - Michel Privatganzsachen Katalog Deutsches Reich and Post-WWII - Michel Privatganzsachen Katalog.

In the next issue we'll look at more postal stationery and note sources where these items may be obtained. ■

More helpful hints

- Make slits or windows before hinging any items on exhibit pages. If you make a mistake, there is less to undo.
- When you make slits, use Post-it notes (at their corner angles) to mark where you want to begin and end the slit.
- When printing pages, check to see that your computer program has not automatically changed your section numbers (for example, turning 3.2 into 3.3).
 - Buy much more paper than you think you will need, especially if you have chosen a light color rather than white. It's amazing how many pages we go through printing re-writes. Paper producers and suppliers may change or phase out your chosen color.
 - Double hinge everything to help prevent runaway stamps.
 - Bring spare hinges with you when mounting an exhibit – just in case
 - When you number the backs of your pages, use a pencil – numbers may change when you do rewrites.
 - Use photocopies rather than the actual items when laying out pages – this minimizes risk of damaging any actual

Rockwell Kent redux

Ten years ago I wrote about the 1932 Rockwell Kent Greenland airmail stamp (Figure 1). As I mentioned, this was created during filming of Deutsche Universal's S.O.S. Eisberg. Captain Ernst Udet, a WWI German flying ace, carried mail with the stamp on it as a fundraiser; about eight covers are recorded.

Since then, I have been able to add some other material to help flesh out the story. In the mid-1930s, Bulgaria Cigarette Makers of Dresden issued a long series of cards; No. 240 was of Udet (Figure 2). The film company issued a large poster stamp to promote the film. It is known in greenish-gray and brownish-gray, in German, French and English (the first scarce; latter two rare, Figure 3). I know of only a single cover with one tied (Figure 4).

Figure 5.

To round out the story, a reproduction has recently appeared: black on greenish or cream paper, gummed. It is clearly not meant to fool anyone (Figure 5).

Figure 6.

However, on eBay, I have seen obvious forgeries offered twice. I bought one for archival purposes. Without looking any further, the inclusion of the portion of a second stamp to the left is evidence enough. These stamps were produced one at a time (Figure 6).

So new things are constantly popping up. ☐

ATA eShop is on its Way

An eShop is on its way for ATA! Development of an online shop selling ATA products is in process. I aim to unveil this before the end of the year.

The Magic of Disney – Topical Tidbits

The spring edition of Topical Tidbits was jam packed with Disney facts, games, album pages and fairy tale trivia. Designed for youth, Topical Tidbits can be enjoyed by adults as well. These fantastic resources are created by our assistant youth coordinator, Aimée Devine, and are always available online to use for yourself, with your grandchildren or your local stamp club.

The Disney edition of Topical Tidbits can be viewed on our website at www.americantopicalassn.org/tidbits/2017-spring.pdf, and a full list of Tidbits editions can be found at: www.americantopicalassn.org/tidbits.shtml.

Did You Know??

There is a list of ATA member websites and dealer websites on the ATA site. Check out the interesting variety of topics, databases and checklists our members have created, all in one place: www.americantopicalassn.org/memberlinks.shtml.

If you wish to add your website to the list, please email the ATA Office: americantopical@msn.com.

Survey Says...

by Vera Felts

This article is the final one in a series responding to the many hundreds of comments ATA members wrote in our Membership Survey last year. Answers to many of the comments are found in the “About ATA Checklists” article on page 53. Here are other member comments not covered there (each is bullet-pointed).

- Distribute more free checklists
- Making some of the shorter lists of topicals available free online on the website.

We distribute a free checklist each holiday season, downloadable from our website by ATA members and nonmembers alike. It is publicized in the philatelic media. Sometimes we offer a free checklist with the purchase of other lists. We'll work toward offering even more – and perhaps offer some of the shorter lists on our website. Thanks for your suggestions!

- Adding checklists children would be interested in.

Great idea – and one that would enrich our free website offerings. It would be nice to have them illustrated, too. Are there any ATA members interested in putting together such lists?

- I can't peruse all the catalog, every time, just to check if there is a new entry. So to periodically notify me about the new entry (via email) on a specific topic would be very useful.

More than 4,000 new entries were added to the ATA Checklist dATABse in July alone. It would be impossible for ATA to email each member who has purchased a checklist every time a stamp is added. The best way to learn if new items have been added is to check the numbers in a new listing of checklists, like the one found in this issue. If items have been added to your list, and it has been at least a year since you ordered the list or received an update, ATA will be happy to supply you with a new list or an “updates only” list.

- Set up a system to allow me to download checklists to my computer.

This may be possible in the future through www.ATA-BecauseYouBelong.org. But having such a system is beyond the technological capabilities of our current dATABse.

- I have not purchased a checklist as (study unit name) maintains a very comprehensive checklist, but may consider it in the future.

ATA checklists are designed for beginning to intermediate collectors. Around a dozen ATA Study Units maintain a license with Amos Media that allows them to sell checklists – and their lists are often wonderfully detailed and more specific than the more general ATA checklists. Other ATA Study Units offer a free checklist service to their members (which apparently does not require a license to use ~~Copyright © 2009 Scott E. Williams~~) their members (which apparently does not require a license to use Scott numbers).

When an ATA Study Unit notifies the ATA Office that maintaining checklists is one of its member services, the website URL for the study unit is listed in every ATA checklist listing near the major topic the unit services.

- Although I recognize the enormity of developing your checklists, recently I purchased several and found them to be seriously inadequate.
 - The lists are only as good as the data received to put in them. I acquired a (topical subject here) list to find out what was missing in a particular subset only to find out that my subset list was more comprehensive. So there needs to be a methodology for those topical collectors to send in additional data to help improve the lists for the good of all topical collectors.

Our tireless checklist dATABase developer, Karen Cartier, did more than was humanly possible to set it in motion. Member Tom Stillman entered all the items he could possibly do over a period of two years. New Coordinator, Dominic Sgro of Canada, and Assistant Beth Scully of Texas, together have added 7,227 items in May, June and July. But, the lists will be only as good as ATA members help make them! So, we earnestly seek the submission – by email or mail – of any item that should be added or description that should be changed or alteration that should be made. Forms (in Excel and in .pdf) are on our website page for convenience – or submit them any format that is convenient to you to avoid re-keying information.

- The greatest assets the ATA has are the various topical lists. Most of your resources and focus should be on keeping these lists available and updated. Too often I have sent update information and I would not see any resulting use or acknowledgement of that information.

We certainly know there have been instances in the past where ATA has “dropped the ball” and your contribution has not yet been entered or acknowledged. For that, we apologize. That is a major reason we now have two checklist coordinators instead of one. Beth Scully has been working hard on a backlog of submissions, and contributors now receive both an acknowledgement when they submit items and a copy of the incorporated info. We will be doing our best to continue these kinds of responses in the future.

- Create a checklist for other topics like stamps with embedded material.
- Have more (name of subject) topic checklists.

Fine idea concerning the Embedded Materials checklist! We do have checklists on various shaped stamps, but no list for stamps with special materials. Can anyone help with that? It is a popular area of collecting and would be a nice addition to the ATA checklist repertoire. Regarding checklists on other topics, we certainly do welcome contributions. It is only through member contributions that our service can be improved.

- I think the checklists are a huge benefit.
- The new checklist system is absolutely fantastic. Keep it up!

Thanks very much for your encouragement! We will all work together to keep the ATA Checklist Service the best that it can be. ☺

About ATA Checklists

ATA's checklists are one of its most important member services. Checklists provide beginning and intermediate collectors a working list of stamps related to a specific topic. The list contains, among other information, the name of the country issuing the stamp, the date of issue and the Scott catalog number. The contents of one of ATA's newest lists, for Paralympics, are illustrated nearby. The brief description of each stamp helps the collector determine whether the item is desirable for his or her collection. The list, by its nature, is always a work in progress. ATA members continue to help improve lists by submitting corrections and additions, which are then incorporated. Each month, all the topical stamps from Linn's Stamp News are added to the ATA Checklist dATABse, to make it as current as possible. The Paralympics list will undoubtedly grow in the future as additional stamps are issued by countries.

Some basics regarding how ATA's checklist service works:

- The number of items in each list are shown in parentheses after each checklist name. The cost of a list is 2¢ for each item, with a $3 minimum and a $75 maximum for any list.
- Customized lists are available for the same price.
- Lists are available emailed in Excel or .pdf format, or printed and mailed (additional charge to cover costs).
- Updates are always available at no additional charge as long as ATA membership is maintained. Choose between 1) only the stamps added or amended since you last received the list, or 2) a complete new list.
- To order checklists or updates, email, write or call the ATA Office, or use the form available on our website. Office procedures allow most checklists to be delivered within 24 hours of receipt of your request; reminders are appreciated if

More on Checklists

The ATA maintains a licensing agreement with Amos Media, owner of Linn's Stamp News and the Scott Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue, allowing use of Scott catalog numbers in all ATA checklists.

For advanced collectors, several ATA study units sell more detailed checklists for their particular topical areas. Those study units maintain their own licensing agreements with Amos Media. Amos does not include study units under ATA's licensure.

Some other ATA study units that do not maintain licensing agreements offer check-

ATA Checklists: A Member-to-Member Service

Topical Listings for Aug-Sep 2017 (An alphabetical listing is also available.)

New checklists: Michigan; Olympics 2016; Painters (misc/other); Paralympics. Current checklist listings (1,212 different lists) are also posted on our website at www.americantopicalassn.org/checklists.shtml or are available by sending an addressed, stamped envelope to ATA, and are available in our Publication Guide at ATA tables at stamp shows.

Policy for checklist use: All American Topical Association (ATA) checklists are the property of the ATA, intended for use by members and to promote topical collecting. These checklists are copyrighted and are not to be copied except by the ATA for distribution to its members. Portions of a checklist may be used as part of a philatelic article or column if credit is given to the American Topical Association. While every effort is made to provide accurate and timely checklists, the ATA cannot guarantee that these checklists are complete or error free. Questions on the use of a checklist should be directed to the ATA Office. Members finding errors or omissions are encouraged to send amending information to atachecklists@gmail.com to improve upon this members-only service. Please use the Stamp ID number in the first column of each list to reference suggested changes.

Checklist titles are shown according to three general topics: NATURE, CULTURE and TECHNOLOGY. Each is then subdivided within the topic. The number in parentheses after the checklist title is the number of stamp issues that appears in the checklist. The items contained in the checklists described as "misc/other" are not repeated in the related lists that follow. For instance, the Animals (misc/other) list contains stamp items not listed in the other Animals listings. The following information is included for each issue: Type of philatelic Issue, Country, Issue date (year, month, day) Denomination, Scott catalog number, Description, Non-Scott numbered souvenir or mini sheet?

Checklists marked with an asterisk(*) contain Beyond the Catalog (BTC) items; that is, basic types of common philatelic items issued by governments but not usually listed in the Scott Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue, such as booklet covers, meter stamps, postal cards, postal stationery and postmarks.

Costs for the checklists are:

Emailed (Excel file, or .pdf file, if requested): 2¢ per stamp issue. Thus, a checklist with 200 items costs $4. Mini-topics (checklists with fewer than 150 items) cost $3. Maxi-topics (checklists with more than 3,750 items) cost $75.

Mailed: Add 10¢ per page for printing (~50 items per page), plus actual postage to mail. Please contact the ATA Office for assistance.

Checklist Updates: ATA members who purchase checklists from the new DATAbase (since May 1, 2014) are entitled to free updates once/year as long as ATA membership is maintained. Please contact the ATA Office for your update(s).

Customized checklists, produced by searching for key words, are also available.

Scott catalog numbers in ATA checklists are published with the permission of Amos Media, Inc., publisher of the Scott Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue. They are updated regularly by adding newly cataloged stamps listed in Linn's Stamp News (this list contains listings through June 2017) and changes/updates suggested by ATA members.

Updates of lists you purchase are available free as long as your ATA membership is maintained. Members are encouraged to supply amending information to atachecklists@gmail.com or to the ATA Office, to help improve the checklist service.

Thanks to Karen Cartier for her legacy – the checklist dATABse from which ATA checklists are produced. ☺

Feedback Requested From Checklist Users

Dominic Sgro and Beth Scully, ATA's new checklist coordinators, have a question for ATA checklist users:

If stamps are issued/sold as a sheet, mini sheet, strip or souvenir sheet, and there are multiple topics represented, would you like the individual stamps and the sheet listed as separate items in the ATA checklists? (Sheets/minisheets with single topics will be kept as issued and entered as a separate item.) If you have an opinion about this issue, or would like to contribute "your 2¢ worth," please email atachecklists@gmail.com or write to the ATA Office, PO Box 8, Carterville IL 62918-0008. Thank you.

YOUTH IN TOPICS

MaryAnn Bowman

NTSS 2017 and a bit of Change

National Topical Stamp Show 2017 in Milwaukee is history now. The July-August issue of Topical Time outlined some of the youth and beginner activities that would be available at the show. These were well received and photos from the show accompany this article. A special thank you goes to the National Stamp Dealers Association for funding the youth area. I appreciate all those members who stopped by to say "hi," as well as those who donated stamps and other philatelic material for use in the youth/beginner program.

Youth and adults both had fun working on projects in the family fun area at NTSS.

A New Direction

Jack Denys, former ATA president, asked me to attend the ATA board meeting and to specifically address the comments and suggestions that were made regarding youth and philately in a survey taken last year.

Many of the comments were related to getting programs into schools and offering school stamp clubs – a noble idea but, quite frankly, one that will not be easy to implement. Having come from the educational profession myself, I know some of the problems that will be encountered and the reasons such programs are not likely to be included in the curriculum of schools.

Efforts to promote the hobby through youth areas at stamp shows reach only those youth who come to the show with parents or other relatives. We can still work at stamp shows for new recruits, but most likely these people are in the hobby already.

Youth have very little free time as a result of their involvement in after-school activities such as sports and with time spent on computers and other technological devices.

A new approach

A different approach is needed if we are to attract new blood to the hobby.

Perhaps it is time to go in a new direction. We know that the world is changing. The hobby needs to change as well. Today's adult collectors need to recognize that change is in the air and embrace those changes to meet collectors where they are.

Many times youth areas are nothing more than an offer of free stamps and maybe the offer of some supplies or reference material. What is being done to show others the passion we have for the hobby or to share some of the fascinating aspects of stamp collecting?

As I pointed out to the ATA board, there are two words that are often not used or seen in stamp show advertisements or other hobby promotional materials. Those two words are "family" and "fun."

I am suggesting that clubs and show organizers should begin to promote the hobby with family fun events. Instead of a youth/beginner room, have a family fun room. Organize an event at a library or school evening program advertising it as a family fun time. During these times, offer the opportunity to explore stamps through hands-on and interactive programming activities.

If possible, set up the room so that one can flow from activity to activity with the ability for an individual or family to select things that interest them or that they would like to try.

Some “basics” should be offered; at a minimum, demonstrating the how-to of removing stamps from paper and then offering a hands-on opportunity. Kids love to soak stamps! Additionally, a table could display some of the tools of the trade, such as catalogs, perforation gauges, watermark detectors, magnifiers and more. A collector could be on hand to offer information as to how and why these tools are used.

Most of the activities should be ones that allow participants (kids and adult family members) the ability to explore facets of the hobby, specifically ones that they may not have any idea even existed in the wonderful world of stamps.

Examples of possible learning stations or discovery centers are many. Do you remember the USPS Secret Decoder from the late 1990s? Both adults and children will have fun trying to see the hidden images in select U.S. stamps.

Similarly, use magnifying glasses to hunt for the microprinting on some U.S. and Canadian stamps, or to hunt for the word “NINA” as hidden in the caricatures of the U.S. Comedians booklet or Silent Screen Star stamps designed by Al Hirschfeld during the 1990s. And, most recently, check out the U.S. Harry Potter booklet stamps, where seven of the stamps each have one micro-printed word to spell out a message.

Speaking of magnifying glasses, gather an assortment of various sizes and types of magnifiers and set them out on a table. Number each magnifier. The task would be for the user to try and pick out his/her favorite magnifier. Results could be marked on a tally sheet, recorded on a bar graph or even written on slips of paper as to why a particular magnifier was their favorite.

If you have an ultraviolet light, demonstrate its use. To get you started, Linn's Stamp News had an article, “Turn on the glowing stamp magic with an ultraviolet lamp,” published Oct. 11, 2010, written by Janet Klug. An Internet search will lead you to the article. Then use other research skills to find some of the unusual tagging patterns found on U.S. stamps.

Do you have access to non-cacheted first-day covers? Set up a station with various art supplies, such as markers, colored pencils, crayons, water colors and other supplies to create add-on cachets to these covers. For the not-as-artistic, offer stencils, cookie cutters or other tools to trace around, stickers or other craft materials. Participants can create and take home their own creative cachet.

Or, if there is an interesting new issue of family appeal that would lend itself to the creation of a cachet, supply the envelope, art materials and, later, the stamp and send for the first-day cancel for them. They will have a nice souvenir and reminder of the family fun event as well as the thrill of receiving a piece of mail.

Caricaturist Al Hirschfeld was known for hiding his daughter Nina's names in his drawings. The stamps he designed were no different. The name has been emphasized in red in the enlargement.

Civil War wallpaper covers are from an era in history that might be unknown to adults and children. Create a small educational display with a brief history of Civil War wallpaper covers, along with photocopies of real covers. Then, a template could be used to trace the outline of an unfolded envelope onto a sheet of wallpaper. A message could be written, the cover sealed, addressed and mailed.

Even the act of creating an envelope using templates you provide may encourage and promote the art of writing. Wrapping paper, magazine or calendar pages and even old maps make interesting envelopes or illustrated mail pieces.

Deciphering the bar codes found on the bottoms of most mailed pieces offers a challenge for young and old alike. Wikipedia offers one explanation, but others are readily found. Set out a variety of envelopes with different ZIP codes, as well as deciphering directions, for another hands-on activity.

Simple stamp passports or mini-albums, such as the one found on the website of the Wisconsin Federation of Stamp Clubs, offers another learning activity. Small in size, with an ample supply of a foreign stamp mixture, the album can be completed quite quickly and form a nice take-away from your family fun event. Check it out at: www.wfscstamps.org>Youth/ClubLeaders/MiniStampAlbum.pdf

Consider offering a display on a foreign country – any country. It is quite easy to create a trifold display with interesting facts and information about a country. Use photocopied illustrations and fact charts from children's books, add picture postcards, set out a tub of stamps from that country, as well as album pages for mounting the stamps and you have another interest center for families to enjoy. Choose a country from which you can readily find an assortment of stamps – countries such as Canada, Australia, Germany, or any other country for which you can provide materials. If doing the family fun event several times a year, choose a different country to highlight and focus on the next time you present the activity.

I have additional ideas for activities that could be used in a family fun area and I will share them with you next time. In the meantime, consider planning such an event. If possible, I would suggest trying to do it several times during the year. Find a location in a community room, such as a library or an educational institution. Even some of the non-profit organizations, such as the Salvation Army, Goodwill and St. Vincent de Paul have rooms. I would also suggest that if you are planning such an event, don't use all ideas at once. Save some activities for another time. That way there is something different being offered in the event some families choose to return for another program.

I'd love to hear about your thoughts, suggestions or questions in regard to having a family fun event.

He illustrates a French commemorative released June 23, 2017, celebrating the landing of the first troops of the American Expeditionary Force (AEF). The stamp shows a small portrait of General Pershing, a ship and marching troops carrying an American flag. The United States previously released a 32¢ stamp in the 1910s pane of the “Celebrate the Century” series in 1998 (Scott 3183i) showing an “I Want You” Uncle Sam poster with the words “U.S. enters World War I.” He also mentions sources for locating other stamps related to the AEF: the ATA, Scott’s new issue listing appearing in Linn’s Stamp News and new issue dealers. Following up on WWI, the show cover for Lan-copex 2017 is illustrated and also commemorates the United States entry into The Great War. In the column "Jottings from a Worldwide Stamp Collector," the editor briefly goes over some of "The Harding Scandals" that plagued the administration of Warren G. Harding, our 29th president (1865-1923). Discussed with illustrations of stamps are the Alien Property Custodian Scandal, Justice Department Scandal, Veterans Bureau Scandal and, probably the most notorious, the Teapot Dome Scandal. Harding was widely considered to be a decent man who was not up to the office of the presidency and most historians feel that he was probably ignorant of most of the unscrupulous activities engaged in by some members of his cabinet. Described as a man who didn't know how to say no, he appointed a number of friends and acquaintances to positions for which they had no previous experience or ability. Once the scandals started to see the light of day, he himself was quoted as saying:

Distressed by the unfolding events, Harding took a trip across the country and, on his way to San Francisco from Alaska, became ill with what has been described as "ptomaine poisoning," developed pneumonia and eventually died of an embolism on Aug. 2, 1923. Newsletter topics: (June) Opened in 1759 and now stretching over 300 acres of gardens and greenhouses, Kew Gardens contains the world’s largest collection of living plants. Great Britain has issued several stamps over the years commemorating the gardens. Chris Wheeler gives some history of the gardens in his illustrated article, “A Day At the Kew Gardens.” In “Postage Stamps Defining Social History: An Example of Cold-War Politics – Part 2,” Chris Yardley looks at the stamps from East and West Germany issued between 1949-90 related to science. He then uses the stamps to “compare and contrast” how the stamps of the two Germanys give different messages. East Germany issued more stamps than West Germany in the previously noted time period and more science stamps as well. The achievements of the Russian space program, as propaganda for the communists, resulted in 60 space related stamps issued by East Germany, West Germany, mail system, resulted in 60 space-related stamps issued by East Germany, West Germany and West Berlin issued only three space-related stamps during their 42-year existence.

Sue Townsend's interesting article, "How I Started: Discovering and Having Fun With Thematics," traces her evolution as a topical/thematic collector. A club meeting where the subject was "something beginning with 'E'" led her to 'H' and her first display, A History of Britain from the Ice Age to the Tudors. She then went on to the Industrial Revolution for the letter 'I,' Quakers for 'Q' and Transport for 'T.' The article illustrates material from her displays. Although at first she used only British stamps, Townsend broadened her collecting to include foreign stamps that fit with her themes. In "Herbs and Spices," an illustrated article, Neil Pearce describes a number of these aromatic plants. Lise Whittle's "Just4Kids" column, in this issue, "I-Spy My Favorite Tree," shows a number of stamps depicting trees with text encouraging youngsters to identify the trees depicted.

man pianist and composer, who was the wife of Robert Schumann. Her portrait can be seen on a stamp from Germany issued in 1986 (Scott 1480). (June) At the May meeting of the Pretoria Chapter, Andre Nel showed a collection of Butterflies, while at the May meeting of the Kwazulu-Natal Chapter, Joyce Hulse showed pages from her penguin collection that will be exhibited with the title Happy Feet – Looking at Penguins (Family Spheniscidae). (July) Petra Heath shared her collection on Nelson Mandela at the June meeting of the Pretoria Chapter. At the Western Cape Chapter's June meeting, Henk showed his exhibit, The Pursuit of Butterflies and Moths. Editor Robert Harm looks at the topic of "The Accordion" on stamps, based on an article written in Dutch by Anna C. van der Maade and published in July 2017 in OVVP Nieuwsbrief 139. Several examples are shown, including the stamp from Switzerland shown nearby. The article notes that the instrument is very popular in South America where an annual international event is held. From 1960 it has been used increasingly in classical music, in addition to its long-standing association with folk music. □
