TRUE STORY OF THE STAMP TRADE'S BIGGEST PROBLEM

The solution wasn't obvious, but with your help (Collectors) – would it work?

Managing Director Andrew McGavin of Universal Philatelic Auctions explains:

Twenty years ago, and I suspect the same is true today, the typical stamp dealer's biggest problem was not what sold, but what would not sell. In those days mail-bid postal auctions would parcel up their unsold lots (unsolds) and sell them on to other auctions which hopefully had different collectors in their database to whom such material would be new.

In this way they would "release" funds in order to be able to purchase new stamp collections. Other auctions not participating in this exercise would spend a significant proportion of their describing time in re-describing "unsolds" in order to re-present them as "new."

The significance of re-cycling/re-presenting material should not be underestimated – too high a proportion of unsold material stymied dealers from purchasing new stock – a problem many collectors may recognize today when re-visiting suppliers who never seem to have something new to offer: ultimately collectors stop going back to dealers who offer only stale stock.

In essence a dealer selling the best stamps out of any collection he or she has purchased may cover costs, but the profit in any typical collection lies in slower moving stock which is more difficult and takes longer to sell.

Try as they might, there didn't seem to be a satisfactory solution, although today many dealers use eBay to clear unsold stock even at a loss.

Universal Philatelic Auctions (UPA) puzzled long over the problem, seeking to turn a "negative" into a "positive." The breakthrough came when its Director took the view that if it was not selling it must be too expensive. This soon led to the conclusion "why don't we reduce the estimate (and reserve) until sold or given away" – after all – everything must be worth something, and if not it should be given away to make way for new stock ... and so ... twelve years ago ...

The Universal Unique Reducing Estimate lot system was born

In 1999 a 6,500-lot UPA auction was created. The director agonized – "would it work?" No dealer or auction, to his knowledge, had ever done this before. Would collectors hold off from bidding and wait until the next auction when the estimate was lower? – or, worse still, the following auction – when the estimate was reduced even lower? Would collectors pass up the first opportunity at new stock and wait – and, if so, for how long?

It was a tense few months, but in the end the director need not have worried. There were 650 different collectors who bid in that first auction, spending £65,000 (US $100,000+). Collectors who saw something they really wanted would bid first time. But, what of the unsold stock – did it sell? Universal had done something never seen in stamps before, or since – it actually told collectors in subsequent auctions how many times a lot had been unsold – so that collectors could work out how much it had been reduced by from the original estimate ...

... and did the unsolds sell? Collectors bid on the unsolds in following auctions – so that sometimes an unsold lot reoffered actually sold for more than available before.

And now, some 12 years later, we come to today. UPA runs quarterly auctions with approximately 17,000 lots in each auction and over £700,000 (US $1,000,000+) of stamps from all over the world offered – including Thematics, British, US, and most countries of the world. Today UPA holds the United Kingdom record for the most stamp collectors bidding in a single auction – 1,491 different collectors – collectors who live in all corners of the world ... and yet, surprisingly, 9 out of 10 bidders are successful due to the auctions' significant 17,000+ lots size. Could you be one of them?

Jack's Journal

That's not a weird math problem. And it's not a new version of a song from the musical, Rent. These are key numbers associated with our new topical checklist database. It contains nearly 1,200 topics, almost 400,000 stamps and 602,981 topical listings.

WOW!

Karen Cartier did a tremendous job developing that database, over five years, with incredible patience and dogged perseverance. She turned each page of each volume of Scott and recorded the catalog description of the stamp, as well as what she was able to see in its illustration. She also imported many of our older lists, originally submitted by our members, and is currently adding items missed the first time around. We are indebted to Karen for this wonderful new ATA resource.

It is comprehensive. Recently a member expressed surprise that the “staid” ATA has a checklist for Tattoos! Other topics in the database may also surprise: Cockroaches, Death, Fingerprints, Hairstyles, Lizards/Geckos, Marbles, Optical Illusions, Skeletons, Smallpox, Social Security, Ventriloquism. Not your typical topicals! The world of topicals sure is diverse!

The checklists are phenomenal – but they’re not perfect or complete. And by their very nature they never will be. They are living lists which will be updated regularly.

Karen did her job – now it’s your turn! The checklists remain a member-to-member service. Here are ways you can help our new checklists become even better. Check the new lists against your own lists and please send to the ATA Office:

1. Corrections.

2. Additions of older issues. There are details on many stamps that show topics that we haven’t caught, so we couldn’t list them. And because Scott doesn’t illustrate every stamp, topics on non-shown stamps have inevitably been missed. you know what stamps belong to your topics – please share them with us.

3. Additions of new issues. While the lists will be updated regularly by adding stamps from Linn’s/Scott Stamp Monthly’s new issue listings, again, because of the lack of illustrations, we will miss some specific listings – you can add those that show your topics.

4. Lists of additional topics (yes, there are more!). Maybe they are mini-lists of only a few items. By sending them, you could discover another collector of the same topic who can tell you about stamps that you don’t know. And you help our lists grow.

5. Lists of Beyond the Catalog (BTC) items. These are basic types of common philatelic items issued by governments but not usually listed in the Scott Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue, such as booklet covers, meter stamps, postal cards, postal stationery, postmarks and more. By sending lists of these often-hard-to-find-out-about items, you can make lists even more valuable.

To help you send lists in the preferred format, there is a checklist template on our website: americantopicalassn.org/checklists.shtml.

Thanks for doing your share to help make the excellent lists even better! ☺

Attention bargain hunters! Have you checked out TopicalsOnLine? Well-priced stamps – by topic, country or Scott number – are for sale there. Go online and find your bargain: www.TopicalsOnLine.com.

Many ATA members are taking advantage of the great new checklist service. With a checklist in hand, you can buy stamps for your topic at www.TopicalsOnLine.com. You'll find well-priced stamps and enjoy an ATA member discount. All sales benefit the ATA.

Membership Directory

Although the ATA Office staff had originally planned for production and release of our next Membership Directory this fall, it will now be produced in 2015 and will be available by next summer. Most of the reason for the change is actually a good one: response to the new checklist database has been so positive that our small office staff has needed to devote its attention to that area. The Membership Directory questionnaire originally planned for September will now be distributed in January. Please keep your May-June, July-Aug. and Sept.-Oct. issues of Topical Time nearby so you'll have the new Topic listings available to complete your short questionnaire early next year.

Thank you

Our members continue to send unsolicited comments:

"I've been using the ATA Disney DVD/electronic handbook to copy graphics of issues up through 2011 and it works great. Able to copy the images without any problem. Also very easy to navigate from page to page and jump around. If I, who always has problems with electronics, thought it worked great, then it really does!"

- Carol Costa

"Received my checklist order today. The checklists are beautifully done. What an improvement over what they used to be; they are excellent! A job of revision well done. Many kudos. Many thanks as I have been awaiting the new format for quite a while."

- James Marlowe

"I've just spent a couple enjoyable hours going over the list of countries and frog stamps that you sent me – I didn't realize how enticing it would be until I really got going. The list is magnificent... I'm proud to continue the work of such a fantastic effort."

Vera's Views

Ambassador Activities. Our ATA Ambassadors at stamp shows have had a very eventful summer! August was particularly busy—and fruitful—with 24 Ambassadors working seven events and 29 new members signed up. When Ambassadors represent us at stamp shows, they are listed in “About ATA” in this journal. Take a look and see how many shows have hosted ATA representatives!

Among the summer shows was APS StampShow in Hartford, Conn., where Don Bailey-Francois did yeoman duty as local liaison, airport transporter extraordinaire and all-around go-to guy who helped so many ATA members and others enjoy the show. Thanks, Don, for your gracious hospitality! Also during StampShow, a group of 10 ATA members enjoyed “ATA Night Out!” at a local restaurant.

Ambassador Sue Jones recently spoke to two local groups, Sun City Stamp Club and Spring Hill Stamp Club in northern Illinois, sharing information about ATA with beginning collectors in one group and more advanced hobbyists in the other. If you would like to make a presentation to your stamp club about ATA, just contact the ATA Office and we'll mail you "goodies" to hand out to your fellow club members.

Our Belpex crew went into fun mode again this year. At the show in late August, the group's ATA regional meeting featured five different presentations on various topics collected by members. Lunch together after the meeting at Belpex is an annual event. I am pleased that under the leadership of Joe Sullivan, many ATA members are carrying on our tradition of connecting with others and sharing information about ATA.

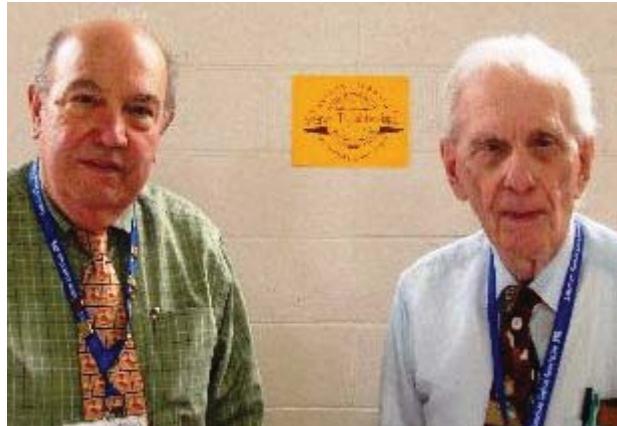

ATA is always interested in supporting new Ambassadors as well as providing items and current information to the 64 Ambassadors who are already helping in some way. We are particularly looking for Ambassadors from the northeast who could represent us at Philatelic Show in Boxborough, Mass., and others. Please contact the ATA Office to volunteer for an interesting experience that can be tailored to your time and talents!

Membership Directory. The preparation and release of ATA's next Membership Directory has been extended to early next year. Our office staff cannot complete the needed work for a quality directory during the few remaining months of 2014. I certainly regret this decision, as the directory is one of our best tools to help you connect with others who share your collecting interests. However, to maintain the quality and consistency you have come to expect from ATA products, it is necessary to publish it in 2015 instead.

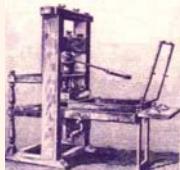

If you returned the directory information slip on the back of a renewal reminder letter, be assured that we will retain the information and you will not need to submit it again. However, you may certainly amend the information should it change before the directory is issued.

ATA Office Staffing. We are sorry that we have not been able to return your phone calls and emails in as timely a fashion as we would like this past summer. Jane, one of our clerical workers, has now returned from maternity leave and Angela's time off due to family illness has decreased. And we now have a more user-friendly phone system so there is a better chance that your phone message will actually get through. All in all, we are pleased we will be able to respond to your requests sooner in the future.

Enjoy your stamps! Please check out www.TopicalsOnLine.com! ☺

Wayne's Impressions

A gentle reminder

As I write this column (acting in my professional capacity as vice president, Regency-Superior Auctions), I am locked in the middle of a two-day process of packing, moving and transporting the collection of the fifth friend of mine who has died in the past couple of years. His collection will be auctioned over the next few months. And, after his collection gets back to the office, my real work will begin, as I sort, organize and find the value that I know is there. But this somewhat bittersweet and reflective experience has placed me in a thoughtful mode over something we'll all have to face some day.

Our passion for the hobby is very real and, hopefully, will last as long as we live, with our ability to enjoy our stamps and covers until we are no longer able continuing undiminished. However, in the midst of that enthusiasm, we do need to be a bit cognizant of the needs of those who ultimately will dispose of our collections. When that inevitable day comes, they will be doing us a favor.

If you are at all like me, your collection no doubt includes elements that are highly organized and therefore easy for most anyone to understand, and then there are those parts that are, shall we say, a little “less organized.”

In that spirit, I’d like to offer a few quick tips that cannot be expressed too frequently.

1. Select a philatelic executor. Chances are, no one in your immediate family knows much about your hobby or what you have in your collection. Therefore it is probably a good idea to select a trusted philatelic friend (and ask him or her) to act in your best interests when the time comes.

2. Leave a road map. Even if your friend understands your collecting interests, he or she will not necessarily know your filing systems or where (or how) you keep your “better” items. Leave a list of those things that should not be overlooked – and instructions of where to find them.

3. Mark better items in your collection for easier identification. If you are an exhibitor, part of this work is already done, as you no doubt have significant items in your exhibit marked as such. But if you don’t exhibit (or have good items in other areas), it is important to somehow identify these stamps, covers or other material to those who are not familiar with them. Those who enter your “stamp den” for the first time have no idea where to start looking – or for what.

Even if you do nothing else, taking these few steps will help you, your executor and whoever ultimately purchases your material to treat your beloved possessions with the respect they deserve. ■

Call for Nominations: DTP 2015

The American Topical Association is now accepting nominations for our organization’s highest award: Distinguished Topical Philatelist. This very special honor is bestowed upon a person who has made significant contributions to topical philately and the ATA in particular.

Individuals, study units and chapters may send nominations. The letter of nomination should detail the person’s contributions to philately – in particular, topical philately.

The award will be presented at NTSS in Portland, Ore., July 31-Aug. 2, 2015.

The Distinguished Topical Philatelist award was established in 1952 by ATA founder Jerome (Jerry) Husak. Since then, 116 people have received the honor. Recipients have included residents of the United States, Canada, Great Britain and Italy. Find a complete list of past winners at our website. The specific url is: [american topical assn.org/awardsdtp.shtml](http://american topical assn.org/awardsdtp.shtml).

The selection committee consists of Donald Smith (chair), Donald Beuthel, Jack H. Green, George Griffenhagen, Dorothy C. Smith, Dalene Thomas and Mark H. Winnograd. Deadline for nominating letters is Dec. 31, 2014. Send nominations to: Donald W. Smith, PO Box 576, Johnstown PA 15907.

Last year’s winner was Jack André Denys, current ATA president, collector and longtime member. ■

Topics on Postmarks

“Nature alone is antique, and the oldest art a mushroom.”

Earthy. Loamy. These are two adjectives that suggest a distinct appearance with colors that infuse a singular texture and aroma. An art form that, as suggested in our title (a quote from Thomas Carlyle), enchant all the senses including, as we shall soon see, the sense of taste.

Our first example was used on the stamp in Figure 1 issued by Belgium in 1991 depicting a Blusher (Amanita rubescens), a mushroom genus so named for its tendency to turn red when bruised. These can be found throughout Europe and, although edible, many of their similar-looking kin are quite poisonous. Gathering these is best left to the more

Summer has started in earnest here in the Northeast so, sadly, morel season is now in our rear-view mirror, the last few remaining recently having been mixed into a “to-die-for” venison stew. So, with the passing of this spring’s fungus-hunting season and in anticipation of the next, I thought in this issue of Topical Time we would take a brief look at your friend and mine, the mushroom – some edible, some not so much.

experienced mushroom hunter. Our pictorial postmark, in this instance applied at Vielsalm, a municipality in the province of Luxembourg, includes the name of the local philatelic society, while presumably also depicting one of our Blushers.

Next we'll visit Bosnia-Herzegovina for a pair of examples. Our Figure 2 pictorial was used in 1998 at Sarajevo and was applied to a pretty block of four stamps showing a colorful array of mushroom varieties that was mimicked, albeit in black, by the postmark that itself celebrates the "Day of the Mushroom," or Gljive in Croatian. In Figure 3 we have a pair of stamps issued in 2010, the one on the left showing an Amanita muscaria, commonly known as the Fly Agaric (Muhara in Croatian), the quintessential Toad Stool. Due to their psychoactive properties, some consider these mushrooms as poisonous, yet in Europe (as well as in Asia and North America) these are parboiled to remove the muscimol, their hallucinogenic component, and enjoyed. The other stamp depicts the Puffball (Puhara), a variety many of us have likely come across at one time or another. These mushrooms are distinct by not possessing an open cap with spore-bearing gills and, in general, are inedible. The postmark struck on these stamps is, in one sense, fairly simplistic, yet the way the lines are thickened in various spots on the outline brings to mind the shadows often seen on these fungi when one is walking through the damp woods where sunlight sneaks in wherever it can find an opening.

Figure 4 takes us over to the Indian Ocean with a rather pedestrian first-day-of-issue stamps from Christmas Island. The four stamps feature different mushroom species, and a central circular postmark commemorates the "Day of the Mushroom" on April 30, 1984. The stamps are inscribed with "CHRISTMAS ISLAND INDIAN OCEAN".

pictorial postmark applied to a block of four stamps issued in 1984 depicting some of the local fungi found on Christmas Island. One can't help but wonder if the designer of this marking felt pressed to add the word "Fungi" to the picture so viewers weren't under the impression they were viewing a mushroom cloud!

In 1989 Czechoslovakia issued a set of five stamps depicting poisonous mushrooms and Figure 5 shows us three out of that set. Each of these mushrooms will most certainly kill you if ingested, but the one at left, illustrated on the 1k stamp, is the most highly toxic of the three and is appropriately commonly known as the Death Cap Toadstool (Amanita phalloides). The shape of the caps and stems in the Prague postmarks used here also warn us to keep well clear of these varieties.

A pleasing concordance between the stamps issued by Denmark in 1978 and the postmark used on them can be seen in Figure 6. At left we have the delicious Morel (genus Morchella) and at right we have Satan's Mushroom (Boletus satanas), a mushroom that is somewhat poisonous but still occasionally eaten if cooked long enough to remove its toxins. The pictorial shows a mix of the two types illustrated on the stamps growing alongside each other.

Our next stop is France, a country holding a time-honored tradition of creating and presenting all manner of culinary delights, many recipes which include our topic du jour. Figure 7 shows us a highly popular type used in the creation of many of these dishes, the Champignon (Agaricus bisporus), one of the most widely consumed mushrooms on the planet. These are native to the grasslands of both Europe and

Figure 10.

North America and are cultivated in more than 70 countries worldwide. Here, the postmark used at Paris also mimics the stamp (issued in 1987), but with a Morel thrown in for good measure. At left, are the immature Champignons, which can be found in either a white or a brown color. At right in both the stamp and the pictorial, is a mature Champignon, known as a Portobello, and now that summer is indeed upon us permit me to suggest that a marinated Portobello tossed onto a barbecue grill is a super treat.

Our second French postmark was also applied at Paris and was used to commemorate the 1993 Tourism and Culture Exposition (Figure 8).

its common name, Herring Russula. The pictorial shown here and applied at Reykjavík in 2012, although somewhat simple, has lines that are quite pleasing to the eye.

Italy is next with a pair of examples: Figure 10's pictorial commemorates the 1995 Mycological Exhibition held at Budoia, and Figure 11 commemo- rates the 2001 "Porcino d'Oro," a festival held each season is in full swing) in Arzana, an area famous for the longevity of its inhabitants, many of whom live long enough to see 100 years of age. Hmmmm... could it be the mushrooms?

Many of us have heard of or have even enjoyed the mildly-flavored Shitake (Agaricus edodes), a mushroom native to China, Japan and Korea that is commonly cultivated on dead trees and one that can be found delicately floating atop that bowl of steaming hot miso soup served up at your favorite Japanese restaurant. In Figure 12 we have a pretty red-colored postmark applied at Hiroshima in 1992 that depicts Japanese culture and, not surprisingly, which includes a mushroom that I assume is a Shitake.

words of wisdom: although I am unable to attribute this quote, truer words were never spoken, particularly for those aspir-

Ten Largest Castles in the World

UNESCO World Heritage Sites

Vincent De Luca

Not surprisingly, seven of the 10 largest castles of the world are in Europe. This is a result of the continuous conflicts and invasions taking place in Europe through the centuries.

Castles became virtually ubiquitous in Europe during the frequent wars in the Middle Ages, but fortified structures have existed since prehistoric times. Since the beginning of civilization, man protected himself by constructing different types of fortified structures that served as places of refuge, defense and worship. Through the centuries, these fortified structures evolved into larger and more sophisticated residential castles, built for the comfort of kings and nobles, and as symbols of their supremacy and power.

The following are the 10 largest castles in the world, according to the latest available data. A brief historic description for each one of them is here enhanced with illustrations of varied philatelic material

1. Malbork Castle, Poland

sian region after an invitation by the Polish duke Conrad of Mazovia, to help with the conversion of pagans. The Order of the Teutonic Knights (Figure 3, Germany 1990, Scott 1595) originated in 1190 in the Holy Land, during the siege of Acre. They combined the Samaritan rules of the Hospitallers (later the Knights of the Order of

The town of Malbork is located about 56 kilometers (35 miles) south-east of Gdansk, Poland (Figure 1, Poland 1954, Scott 640). The castle of Malbork (Figure 2, Poland 1977, postal card, Michel-P701) is the largest in the world, with a surface area of 143,591 square meters, and in 1997 it was designated as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

In 1225 the Teutonic Knights arrived in the Prus-

Malta), and the military rules of the Knight Templars. By 1309 the Teutonic Knights conquered the whole area and made its headquarters at Marienburg (Figure 4, Germany 1924, Scott 339), which subsequently became the greater castle of the Order in the East. The red brick construction of Malbork/Marienburg (Figure 5, Poland 1954, Scott 642) began in 1275, and by 1280 it consisted of two main sections: the Hochschloss (High Castle) with the chapel, and the residential Mittelschloss (Middle Castle).

Malbork has the main features of most Teutonic castles: the overall rectangular plan, often built on low grounds near a river (in this case the River Nogat), use of bricks for its construction and showing the characteristics of the Order being of religious nature and military power. In 1309 the Grand Master of the Order moved from Venice, Italy, to Malbork, and soon he undertook the expansion of the fortified-episcopal complex. Between 1335-41 a tower and a bridge over the River Nogat were added, the middle castle was greatly refurbished internally and, most importantly, a lower castle was built, thus reinforcing the defenses. The fortified complex is encircled by several defensive walls and moats, and has an innovative Dansker or privy tower, in front of the gate with two towers (shown on a Polish postal card of 1977). The castle was completed primarily between 1380-98. From 1457-1772, Malbork was held by the Polish and was greatly restored in later centuries. During World War II it was used by the Germans as a POW camp (Stalag XXB) and was badly damaged in 1945. After the war, Malbork (ex Marienburg) became part of Poland and, since then, it has been continuously restored.

2. Mehrangarh Fort, India

With a surface area of 81,227 square meters, Mehrangarh Fort in Jodhpur (Rajasthan) (Figure 6, India 1984, Scott 1068), is considered the second largest castle in the world.

Figure 6.

Located on a high hill, 122 meters (400 feet) above the city of Jodhpur, in northwest India (Figure 7, India 1958-63, Scott 303), the castle is encircled by powerful 20-meter-wide (68 feet) defensive walls with seven gates, of which the most notable are: Jai Pol (Victory) dating from 1806, Fatehpol dating from 1707 (also meaning Victory Gate), and Lohapol (Iron Gate).

Within the 36-meter-high (118 feet) walls, Mehrangarh Fort encloses several palaces with intricate carvings and interesting courtyards. Phool Mahal or the Flower Palace, perhaps the most impressive of all, was built during the 18th century as a Hall for Private Audience. Jhanki Mahal or Palace of the Glimpses, is so named for the beautiful carved sandstone lattice windows. Sukh Mahal or Pleasure Palace, is a magnificent summer residence surrounded by luscious gardens. Moti Mahal or Pearl Palace, is a throne room dating from the late 16th century; this large and majestic palace was originally built as a Hall for Public Audience.

The Fort complex was first constructed in 1459 by Rao Jodha Singh (1416-89), and was enlarged over the centuries by successive maharajas. What we see today is mainly from 1638-78.

The original Jodha's fortress, also known as Chao Burja, is within the limit of the second gate; of it, very little remains. Mehrangarh's Museum is one of the finest in India, with its royal Palanquin section, the ornate Elephant howdahs (wooden seats), the Maan Vilas with a fine collection of weapons, and many other attractions. Indeed, the Citadel of the Sun, as the fort is known, is – without doubt – the finest extant example of a Hindu fortress.

3 – Prague Castle, Czech Republic

At one point the Castle of Prague, with its 66,761 square meters of surface area, was considered the largest castle in the world, but further surveys confirmed that at least two castles are larger than the one in Prague. In the middle of the Hradčany (castle district), stands the Castle of Prague (Figure 8, Czechoslovakia 1968, Scott 1554), whose first nucleus dates from 870, when Prince Bořivoj of the Přemyslid dynasty, built it on the site of a fortified structure originally erected by Slav tribes. The castle, on a hill above the Vlatava River, stands isolated from the rest of the city of Prague (Figure 9, Czechoslovakia 1967, Scott 1446), protected only by an immense single blank wall. Originally a wooden structure, it was rebuilt in stone and enlarged during the 12th century and successive centuries, as shown on a block of four stamps (Figure 10, Czechoslovakia 1950, Scott 426-429), which depicts the castle's evolution in the 14th century, in 1493, in 1606 and in 1794. Within the wall is the Gothic structure of St. Vitus Cathedral (Figure 11, Bohemia & Moravia, Scott 89), begun in 1344 and completed in 1929, 1,000 years after the

In 1541 the Castle of Prague was damaged heavily by a large fire, but was soon reconstructed. During the 17th and 18th centuries, it was transformed into a Renaissance style under the Hapsburgs and, finally, during the ing from the 12th century, and built by Soběslav I, was later transformed into a Gothic palace by Charles IV (1316-78) (Figure 13, Bohemia & Moravia, Scott B15). The main attraction of the palace is the great Vladislav Hall (Figure 14, Czechoslovakia 1967, Scott 1472), built by the Polish king Vladislav Jagellon between 1486-1502. Here the early kings were elected, and since 1918 every Czech president has been sworn into office there.

Not far from the Royal Palace is the Basilica of St. George. Dating from the 10th century (except the façade that dates from 1670), it is the oldest Romanesque structure in Prague. Next door to the Basilica stands the convent founded by Boleslav II in 973. It now houses the Czech National Gallery.

In 1541 the Castle of Prague was damaged heavily by a large fire, but was death of Prince Václav (St. Wenceslas, c.907-35) (Figure 12, Czechoslovakia 1929, Scott 159), who was the first to build a church within the castle, and whose body was brought there after his death in 929. Next is the Royal Palace, home to the royals of Bohemia from the 11th to the 17th century. The original Romanesque structure, dat-reign of Empress Maria Theresa (1717-80) (Figure 15, Belgium 1972, Scott 835), between 1753-55, the castle was given its uniform appearance as a late Baroque palace. Today Prague Castle is the seat of the president of the Czech Republic.

4 – Burghausen Castle, Germany

This immense castle (Figure 16, Germany 2006, Scott 2386) in Southern Bavaria, is located above the town of Burghausen on a ridge between the Salzach River and the Wörsee Lake, about 110 kilometers (66 miles) east of Munich, and 50 kilometers (31 miles) north of Salzburg, Austria. The fortified complex extends for more than 1,000 meters (about 3,281 feet) along the ridge, divided by moats (ditches) into six enclosures with fortified gates. The origins of the castle are remote, dating from about 100 B.C., but nothing remains of it. The first wooden fortified structure was built in the year 600 by the dukes of Bavaria then, starting from 1020, a series of constructions took place over different periods by the counts of Burghausen. The first expansion was made in 1090 by count Sieghart X, but most of the buildings decayed and disappeared. In 1164 the castle became property of the dukes of Bavaria, who extended it further through the centuries until 1918. In 1255 Duke Heinrich XIII (1235-90) built the main castle, including the chapel, cellars and most of the wall, which are still standing. The present castle (Figure 17, Germany, pictorial cancel of 1997), is mainly the result of extensive reconstructions by Duke Georg der Reiche between 1479

and 1503, to protect the complex against Turkish invasions. Most of the outer defenses and the Pulverthurm (powder tower) date from this period. During the Middle Ages, Burghausen became one of the largest and most important castles in Germany, due to the salt trade. The dukes charged a toll whether the salt from Salzburg traveled on the Salzach River or by land.

In 1809 Napoleon Bonaparte (Figure 18, France 1951, Scott B263) declared the castle no longer suitable as a fortress, due to advanced military technologies available.

Renovation of the main castle has been in progress since 1960. With 56,810 square meters of surface, Burghausen is the fourth large castle in the world.

5 – Windsor Castle, England

After defeating the English at Hastings on Oct. 14, 1066, William I of Normandy (1027-87), also known as the Conqueror

(Figure 19, France 1966, Scott 1160), ordered the construction of several motte-and-bailey castles (Figure 20, Great Britain 1986, Scott 1147) around the city of London, from whence he could control the occupied territories. The motte-and-bailey was a typical Norman castle

formed by a large mound of earth with a wooden tower, courtyard and palisades. Windsor Castle was built by the Conqueror at Berkshire, near London, around 1070. Its original motte is still visible, while the double-shell flat Round Tower (Figure 21, Great Britain 1992, Scott 1448) with an open courtyard was added in 1170.

Henry I (1068-1135), the fourth son of William the Conqueror, was the first king to use Windsor Castle as a residence, and to have replaced the wooden structures with stones. Thereafter, Henry II (1133-89), the grandson of Henry I, rebuilt the defenses, added another bailey in 1175 and built the first royal apartments. During the reign of king John (1199-1218), Windsor Castle came under siege several times; the castle was damaged, but was restored between 1216-21.

Later additions and restorations during the reign of Edward III (1312-77) gave the castle its present appearance (Figure 22, Great Britain 1959, Scott 374). Another significant addition was the Chapel of St. George (Figure 23, Great Britain 1975, Scott 743), begun in 1474 by Edward IV (1442-83) and completed in 1528 by Henry VIII (1491-1547). The chapel, with its detailed stone vaulting, is a masterpiece of late “perpendicular” architecture, and is the burial place of several British kings.

Right after its foundation by William the Conqueror, and beginning with Henry I, Windsor Castle has been the main residence of almost every British monarch to the present. Besides being one of the most impressive residences in the world, Windsor Castle, with its 54,835 square meters of surface, is one of the largest in the world, one of the few that is still inhabited and represents every major stage in the history of English architecture.

6 – Hohensalzburg Fortress, Austria

High on a rocky cliff above the Salzach River of the city of Salzburg, this fortress (Figure 24, Austria 1987, Scott 1392) is an extensive complex of several different periods, occupying the north end of the Mönchsberg ridge over a surface of 54,523 square meters. The oldest part of the castle rests partly on Romanesque foundations undertaken by Prince-Archbishop Gebhard of Salzburg in 1077, and completed by Archbishop Conrad I (1106-47).

During the 15th century the archiepiscopal fortress was continuously reconstructed and enlarged with the inclusion of the round towers of the outer curtain walls, to keep pace with technological military advances. A 2.50-shilling Austrian postal card of 1974 (Figure 25, Michel P439) shows on the illustration side a view of the fortress with its round towers.

The residential living quarters were modernized by Archbishop Leonard von Keutschach (1495-1519), while outer bastions were added during the 16th and 17th centuries.

Among the splendid rooms in the castle, the “Golden Room” is an exquisitely fine example of late Gothic architecture. One of the most popular features in the castle is a gigantic barrel organ dating from 1502, which is played during the summer from the KrautTower where it is housed.

During the Peasant’s War of 1525, Hohensalzburg was attacked by groups of miners and townspeople who were trying to replace Archbishop Lang, but they failed. The following archbishop, Wolf Dietrich von Raitenau (Figure 26, Austria 1987, Scott 1397), was deposed in 1612 and died there in prison.

This largest, best-preserved medieval castle (Figure 27, Germany 1939, Scott B167) can be accessed by paths or by a funicular railway.

7 – Spiš Castle, Slovakia

With 49,485 square meters of surface, Spiš Castle or Spišský Hrad (Figure 28,

Slovakia 1941, Scott 60) is the seventh largest castle in the world. It takes its name from the Spiš region in Eastern Slovakia, and is located on top of a limestone cliff 634 meters above the sea level, amid the scenery of the

Figure 29.

The present castle, dating from 1200, was built on the site of an early Slavic stronghold and served as a place of refuge for the local peasant population. In the early 13th century, the castle was strengthened with powerful walls, and a Romanesque palace was built. As a frontier fortress, it defended the northern borders of Hungary, and functioned as a fortified place of refuge for the Transylvania garrison.

Figure 31.

In 1241 Spiš Castle was captured by the Tartars and, eight years later, upon their withdrawal, the Dean of Spiš received permission from King Bela IV of Hungary (1206-70, Figure 30, Hungary 1986, Scott 3045) to erect a keep and a palace on the fortified hilltop. Subsequently the fortress remained in the hands of Hungarian kings until 1465. Under the Hungarians, the castle was completely rebuilt with the addition of ramparts defended by two huge watchtowers, and the main Romanesque tower (keep) was restructured.

The castle was destroyed by fire in 1780, becoming a neglected pile of white-chalk ruins (Figure 31, Czechoslovakia 1964, Scott 1227). In 1961 it was declared by the state a National Cultural Monument, and Spiš ruins were scheduled for restoration as an important museum complex. In 1993 the castle and surrounding area were included in the list of the UNESCO World Heritage Sites.

8 - Buda Castle, Hungary

Budapest is formed by the cities of Buda on the West bank of the Danube River, and Pest on the left bank. The castle or former royal palace of Buda (Figure 32, Hungary 1931, Scott 437), is situated on the summit of Castle Hill, a long narrow plateau with medieval cobblestone-covered streets, encircled by thick defensive walls.

In 1241, during the Tartar invasion of Hungary, Pest was destroyed and, in 1247, King Bela IV of Hungary (1206-70, Figure 33, Hungary 1942, Scott B153) repopulated it, and established the city of Buda, where he built a tower surrounded by walls on a site previously occupied by a community of farmers. From this single original tower, the town of Buda grew constantly until 1265.

With the end of the Arpad dynasty in 1301, Hungary was ruled by a series of foreign monarchs who continued enlarging and strengthening the castle, resulting in one of the greatest strongholds in Europe. From 1458-90, the castle of Buda reached its maximum splendor under the reign of King Matthias Corvinus (1443-90, Figure 34, Hungary 1896, Michel P19-2 Kreuzer postal card issued for the country's first millennium, and picturing the proclamation of King Matthias I, and the Castle of Buda – please see note at the end of this entry), when it became a center of Renaissance culture. Unfortunately, with the capture of Budapest by the Turks, the castle was almost completely destroyed. The occupation of Hungary lasted from 1541-1686, when the Turks were finally expelled by the armies of allied Christian powers. A stamp issued in 1936 (Figure 35, Hungary Scott 498) for the 250th anniversary of the recapture of Budapest, shows a view of ancient Buda Castle.

Thereafter, Hungary passed into the hands of the Habsburgs of Austria who held the country until the end of World War I in 1918.

However, under the Habsburgs, a new Baroque-style castle-palace was built between 1714-23, later enlarged by Empress Maria Theresa (1717-80, Figure 36, Austria 1980, Scott 1151). But the negative saga of Buda Castle continued, when it was burned by an attack of rising Hungarians in 1810, and during World War II in 1945,

9 – Himeji Castle, Japan

Himeji Castle (Figure 38, Japan 1951, Scott 517a) is the oldest and finest feudal stronghold in Japan and, with its 41,468 square meters of surface, it is one of the largest in the world.

The pagoda-like shape of the popularly known castle of the white Heron, stands on a hill top of Himeji, between Kobe and Okayama on the island of Honshu. The castle dates from 1333, but in 1346 it was dismantled by Akamatsu Norimura, and rebuilt as a fortress against local shoguns (military governors). Later, in 1581, it was converted into a castle with more than 30 towers by Toyotomi Hideyoshi.

From 1601-09, Himeji Castle (Figure 39, Japan 1969, Scott 1001) acquired its present form, when Ikeda Terumasa, feudal lord of the area, completely remodeled it into a large fortified complex, comprising two concentric enclosures protected by walls and moats, as well as a network of 83 fortified buildings and residences for his Samurai Warriors (Figure 40, Japan 1984-89, Scott 1629).

During the revolution of 1867-68, with the Shogunate suppressed and the Meiji dynasty restored, many castles were demolished, but Himeji Castle was spared, retaining its original structure.

In 1945, toward the end of World War II, the surrounding areas of Himeji Castle were heavily bombed, but the castle was not damaged.

Important restorations of the complex began in 1956 and were completed in 1964. For the occasion, Japan issued a stamp commemorating the event (Figure 41, Scott 815).

In October 2009, a full-scale renovation of the castle complex was approved by the authorities of Himeji City, with the works to be completed in 2014.

10 – Citadel of Aleppo, Syria

The Citadel (Figure 42, Syria 1931, Scott C53), extending over 39,804 square meters of surface, is considered the 10th largest castle in the world. It is surrounded by a moat 20 meters deep and 30 meters wide, which is spanned by a bridge on the north side.

The access to the citadel is through a 12th-century gate, and behind this, there is a massive fortified main entrance (Figure 43, Syria 1931-33, Scott 217).

The origins of the citadel as a fortified structure date from the 9th century B.C., as asserted by uncovered archeological ruins from a neo-Hittite fortified acropolis.

The citadel-fortress, used strictly as a military center, was built during the 10th century by Sayf al-Dawla (916-967), first Hamdanid ruler of Aleppo. Further fortified structures, and the Small Mosque were added by Nur al-Din (1118-74) between 1147-74 before and after frequent attacks by the Crusaders.

The present form of the Citadel's complex. With major rebuilding of all the fortified structures, took place between 1186-1216 under the reign of Sultan al-Zahir al Ghazi (1172-1216), who also incorporated in 1214 the Great Mosque located at the highest point of the Citadel (Figure 44, Syria 1952, Scott 167). Its 21-meter-high minaret permitted extended visibility to greater distances.

A very clever addition was devised for the entrance to the complex: although nicely decorated on the outside, the inside is a succession of five right-angle turns, where three sets of solid steel-plated doors made a formidable barrier to any would-be attacker; some of the doors and a few rooms are still intact. The rest is a pile of ruins, as a result of many invasions and the devastating earthquake of 1822. Fortunately, a major restoration project is in progress.

A view of Aleppo and the Citadel is pictured on a 7.50-piaster Syrian stamp (Figure 45, Scott 225), part of a series of 24 values, issued in 1930-36 under the French Mandate. A single stamp, postmarked: Alep (Aleppo) on Nov. 10(?), 1934, paid the surface mail rate to the United States. Inscriptions inside the rectangular box translate: "Buy commemorative postage stamps of the Syrian Republic." ☐

Board Bio...

Dawn Hamman

This is the sixth in a series of brief biographies of our Board of Directors.

Dawn Hamman was elected this spring as the newest member of the ATA Board. She serves as ATA Publicity Chair and, as an ambassador, has been one of the leading recruiters of new members the past two years. A member of the Biology Study Unit and board member of the Americana Study Unit, Dawn frequently contributes to its journal. Her exhibits have been on manatees, tomatoes, chickens and candy. Dawn developed the NTSS show program the last two years.

Dawn is also a member of AAPE, WE, Postal History Society and Florida Postal History Society. She is active in the Sarasota and Venice, Fla., stamp clubs and serves as newsletter editor for the Venice club, ATA Chapter No. 122.

Retired from a career as a journalist and then a health care marketing manager, Dawn has written and edited many publications, and has been actively involved in fundraising, both professionally and as a volunteer. As a board member, Dawn's particular interests are membership recruitment/retention and fundraising, as well as working to increase awareness of ATA in the world. ☐

Youth in Topics

MaryAnn Bowman

Collectors often speak of wanting to work with young collectors but don't know what to do after they have taught the basics of the hobby. There are tons of ideas available if you search, starting with the many materials found on the ATA website.

A new mini-topical album has been added to the materials available for free downloads. The Youth in Topics column of the May-June 2014 issue of Topical Time included an activity to create a very small worldwide album for stamps. I am pleased to announce that another "tiny" mini-album has been created for topical stamps. The free album can be found at www.americantopicalassn.org.

Between a Rock and a Hard Place

National Topical Stamp Show in St. Louis is history now but it represents the challenges that shows and youth leaders across our country are facing. St. Louis Stamp Expo is well known for its successes in drawing exhibitors, dealers and youth to its shows. So it was with great expectation that I attended NTSS 2014.

For those unfamiliar with St. Louis Stamp Expo, one of its "claims to fame" is that it has one entire room devoted to youth and stamp collecting during the Expo, as well as a great deal of programming that is youth-specific. Classes of school children are bussed in and participate in a variety of hands-on and educational activities, and children are given personalized tours of the show and exhibit area. The Expo show has been doing this for a number of years, exposing many hundreds of children to stamps who might never otherwise have had the opportunity to learn about this great hobby of ours.

It was with this background and knowledge that I headed to NTSS with the anticipation of having a more interested and enthusiastic youth audience. But, alas, without significant advance preparation, the number of youth attending the show was underwhelming. There was exactly one girl on Friday with her grandmother. On Saturday there was a 14-year-old boy, who appeared bored and uninterested in stamp collecting but had come on this outing with his grandfather. The bright spot of the day was an eight-year-old girl who had previously attended stamp shows and looked forward to the activities in the youth area. She attended with her mother, although it was her father who was the collector. She completed several activities, picked out stamps for her collection as well as a few gift items and went home a happy camper.

But wait, there is more. Much to my surprise, the 14-year-old boy returned to the youth area later in the day. He and his grandfather had looked at some of the exhibits and visited dealers but he had not made any purchases or found anything to start his collection. The first time he stopped, I had engaged him in conversation and tried to learn of some of his interests. So, when he appeared again, I had a place to start the conversation. After briefly questioning him about the exhibits and what he had seen that he liked, I took him over to Joanne's Stamps where all of her covers were selling for $1 each. We each grabbed a box and started looking. When he stopped to examine a cover more closely, I questioned him about what it was that he was looking at and why he liked the cover. He asked some questions but chose no covers for himself. Along the way, I had learned that he had an interest in wars; so I returned to the youth area where among the things that had been brought along were some of those large commemorative panels from the likes of Fleetwood and the Postal Commemorative Society. There he showed interest and picked out items related to the Revolutionary and Civil Wars, as well as World War I. I would have been happy to give him all of the items with the hopes that it would "spark" a future interest. But his grandfather, who likely has a different approach, intervened. The boy had picked out about 15 items, but the grandfather took the pile and separated it into the various wars and told the boy to choose one pile and narrow his collecting interest. I politely tried to explain that the boy could take all of the items home, but he still was not allowed to keep them. I offered to mail him additional material on the Revolutionary War, his chosen topic. Understandably, he was not allowed to share his address, so I gave him my address and hope that perhaps I hear from him in the future. (That is, assuming kids still know how to write a letter, address an envelope and find a stamp.) Keep your fingers crossed!

That was not the only instance. On Friday, a grandmother had a young girl return some of the items that she had chosen to take home. I am not sure why adults are imposing their values on young collectors.

By the way, total youth attendance for NTSS from Friday through noon on Sunday, when I had to leave, was six.

So what was the problem at NTSS? Where were the kids? Several theories were advanced. Did an admission fee discourage families (although kids were free)? Was there adequate publicity given to the show? Had an advertising flyer promoting the show gone home with youth and collectors attending the Expo? Was weather a factor? Did the timing of the show and being just prior to the July 4th weekend affect attendance? And so on....

Stamp shows want to promote the hobby and WSP shows in particular are urged to have interactive youth and beginner areas. But with so few youth attending shows, it is hard for some shows to justify the rental cost of tables for youth areas. One table is not large enough to do much, two tables (depending upon the size) can be doable. Preference would be for a larger area or room devoted to a variety of interactive activities (such as St. Louis Expo), but renting a room for the duration of a show can be an expense that committees are not willing to absorb.

Getting youth to a show can also be a problem. There needs to be an adult who sees the value of collecting and provides the necessary transportation to the show. Then there are financial situations with families, given the economic conditions of the day. For some, there are no "extras" for hobbies, and for others there is no perceived need to support a hobby that might be just a passing fancy.

Promoters of stamp shows have many ideas that they would like to implement but often are unable to follow through due to lack of money, volunteers and time. I attended an ASDA seminar about putting on a stamp show. The examples used were of large shows, such as some of the California shows, as well as the St. Louis Stamp Expo. But those are the exceptions. Smaller WSP shows, as well as local shows, are unable to provide those services. Yes, it is wonderful that there are groups of people (or in some cases the U.S. Postal Service) that are willing to foot the cost of bringing youth to the show. Bussing kids even a short distance is expensive. Then, too, today's teachers need to justify field trips, their educational impact and the relationship to their curriculum.

In retrospect, for the St. Louis NTSS, it might have been better if the youth area had been in the hallway leading to the show. At least hotel guests would have been able to allow their children to experience a little of what stamp collecting is all about without the adult having to pay an admission fee.

[Editor's Note (as a member of St. Louis Expo board): Like NTSS, St. Louis Stamp Expo also charges admission, and schools are responsible for the cost of bussing students to the show. Neither is a significant obstacle to the success of the program. The consistently large youth attendance and participation at SLSE has been built over a period of time, due to the commitment of the committee and a large, dedicated stable of volunteers, some of whom work with and within the schools year-round. These kids do not just "meet" stamps during the show. "Roving" shows, such as NTSS can piggy-back with the youth success of SLSE and some of the more successful shows, provided there is advance coordination with local committees. But, in general, WSP shows will need to make a commitment to an active youth program and have the patience to build it over a period of several years. — WLY]

RSVP Program

Perhaps some of you are familiar with the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP). In my area, one of the projects of this group is to go into schools approximately once a month and display and demonstrate various hobbies, collections and interests of the volunteers. One of our members, a former postal worker, likes to share his stamp collecting hobby with youth. He has interesting displays and allows children to select stamps that interest them so they can start their own collections. He used to rely on the U.S. Postal Service for give-away materials and literature, but no longer has that resource available. Both APS and ATA have free downloadable information sheets that cover basics of the hobby.

Something that would be relatively easy to create is a bookmark that could be given to youth. Using a stamp as an illustration, the various websites that have youth-friendly materials could be listed. Youth tend to collect by stamp subject or topic, so be sure to list the ATA as one of the web addresses. Two often overlooked websites are www.learnaboutstamps.org and www.arago.si.edu. Websites for the American Philatelic Society and the American First Day Cover Society should also be considered.

As youth leaders and volunteers, we need to keep ever mindful that these new and eager young collectors are bringing a game change to the hobby. They may not be ready for some of the more sophisticated philatelic skills, their collecting interests may reflect more current cultural trends having lived in a different time period and their ways of accessing information tend to involve more technology.

Philatelic Zoo

The July-August 2014 issue of Topical Tidbits had Philatelic Zoo as a topic. Within the issue was an activity where youth were challenged to use their critical thinking skills to plan and design a layout for a zoo based on certain given criteria. Photocopies of the various animal stamps needed for the project were part of the packet. The stamps were cut out and taped to toothpicks. I varied the activity a little from the directions using corrugated cardboard for the background. This allowed the toothpick stamp zoo animals to stand upright without the use of the clay to hold the stamps in place.

The activity took a good 45 minutes. This is an activity that youth could do as a group, with partners or would even make a nice intergenerational project for kids to work on with their parents.

Edward Cahoon

Dawn Hamman

This is the fifth in a series of brief vignettes spotlighting interests of some of our fellow ATA members.

Edward Cahoon's stamp collecting began in the early 1980s, when he was stationed at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. He chose to collect triangular-shaped stamps.

"I recall that the unconventionality of the triangle shape appealed to me, and I thought it would be a more limited effort than any country or other topical pursuit," he noted. "As it turns out, I was pleasantly wrong on the latter."

Through the years, he has enjoyed the hunt, and developed a checklist of nearly 2,000 stamps from more than 100 countries. He has generously shared that list with the ATA, and members can now purchase it.

But Ed didn't stop with triangular stamps. He has gone "far afield" with other triangular items that have philatelic relationships: 17th-century penny post handstamps, locals, revenues, Cinderellas, COD labels, censor marks, cancels and more.

"I currently communicate with just three other 'triangulatists,'" said Ed, "I hope the checklist encourages others to begin this fascinating topic." ☐

Typewriters

The typewriter is a fairly unlikely item for a topical exhibit, but certainly would be of value in any number of thematic ones.

There are literally hundreds of poster stamps depicting typewriters or accessories, particularly from Germany.

These five U.S. stamps and a cover depict typewriters under the names of Remington, Smith Premier and Monarch. All three of these brands were part of the Union Typewriter Company, a huge trust that resulted from the mergers of these three and a number of other brands.

mous rifle, marketed the first commercial typewriter in 1873. It was the principal investor of the Union Trust formed in 1893 (Figure 1).

The Smith Premier Typewriter Company joined the Trust when it was created in 1893 as well, but by 1903 it split off to form its own company to market its own design. Premier advertising covers are often seen (Figure 2). The three wonderful labels shown may occasionally be found on the reverse (Figures 3-5).

The poster stamp for the Monarch Visible No. 1 is replicated on the carriage's paper support and clearly indicates, at the lower right, that it is Model 1 as noted in the accompanying photo.

It first appeared in 1904.
(Figures 6 and 7).

By 1913, the Trust was in the first stages of dissolution and eventually became, once again, the Remington Type-writer Company. The full story of the Trust is rather complex but it is interesting to see the Cinderella evidence of its existence. ☐

Tiny Trains

Florence Wright

Back when my husband, Norm, retired, he took up sorting stamps for a local dealer. His job was to set up a topicals department, so he sifted through acres of stamps dividing them into birds, ships, flowers – and trains! Usually the subject was pretty obvious, but often close scrutiny was needed to find an item needed to include it in a particular topic.

"Can I help?" I said. So, armed with a magnifier, I got the job of finding tiny subjects, especially trains. Often my "finds" were rejected: "That's a fence, not a train in the distance!" But overall, I did pretty well, and in the process

I located a few of these to share, and The Dispatcher would welcome any others you may find and share with us. It is just a fun activity within the larger hobby!

Let's begin at the beginning: Peru, Scott No. 19, April 1871. Generally acknowledged as the world's first commemorative train stamp, the train – an 0-6-0 locomotive – is not nearly as tiny as some others, but the stamp is pretty small to start with. It was issued for the 20th anniversary of the first railway in South America, linking Lima & Callao. There are a number of varieties of color shade and printing. Portions are embossed.

The stamp was printed by the Lecoq machine only in

Of course, the really tiny train here is on Peru 1204, Stamp-(No. 19)-on-stamp of Jan. 10, 1999, issued for the 50th anniversary of the Philatelic Association of Peru.

Possibly two of the most famous really tiny trains are found on the Chinese junk and the Greece Corinth Canal stamps.

were issued at three different times: the first, or London Printing in 1913 (Scott 202-211b); the First Peking Printing (Scott 221-230a, 240, 247 and 247a) and the Second Peking Printing in 1923 (Scott 248-258b, 274-5, 288-9, 311, 324-5, 330).

The Greek stamps shown at top represent a variety of issues showing the famous Corinth Canal, with a steam train crossing a bridge in the background. The Corinthian Canal, built horizontal strips; the ends of the strips were joined by overlapping so that pairs may be found printed on parts of two strips.

On the left-facing page (near the bottom) is an example of the Chinese junk stamp, second Peking printing from 1923. In 1913, China Post came out with three new stamp designs: the ship and steam train depicting Communications; a farmer reaping rice, representing Agriculture; and the Hall of Classics at Peking, representing Literature.

These basic stamp designs were used until the 1930s. There were dozens of reprints and varieties! The listing of the junk/train stamps takes up nearly two full pages in the handbook, World during the late 19th century, connected the Gulf of Corinth with the Aegean Sea. It is only four miles in length and 23 meters (about 25 feet) wide. It was completed between 1882-93.

The Greek Corinth canal is a stepchild of the Panama and Suez Canals. Earth cliffs flanking either side of the canal reach a maximum height of 63 meters. Aside from a few modest-sized cruise ships, the Corinth Canal is unserviceable to most modern ships, although it has served many cargo ships in the past, providing a shorter route than traversing the Peloponese.

Today, there are two road bridges, two railway bridges and two submersible bridges at both ends of the canal. A new rail bridge was built about 10 years ago.

Scott numbers for the stamp design A36 include 321, 326, 327 and 354. The same design is used on several postal tax stamps (RA 55, RA57, RA66, RA70) overprinted in red or green. Shown is one surcharged for the benefit of tubercular postal clerks and officials.

U. S. stamps with “tiny trains” start with one from 1948 (shown on the previous page). Issued Aug. 2, 1948, it commemorated a century of friendship between the United States and Canada. It is significant to note that the 3,000-mile border between the two countries is the longest non-fortified border in the world. The central design of the stamp is the old bridge known as the Niagara Railway Suspension Bridge, completed in 1855. On March 18 that year a fully loaded passenger train traversed the span at five miles an hour – perhaps the one pictured here.

This bridge itself was special in a great many ways – but that is for another story! It was demolished and replaced in 1897 with a steel arch bridge. The friendship between the two countries, however, continues. The Scott catalog number for this 3¢ commemorative stamp is 961.

Created by Charles R. Chickering, the stamp’s central design portrays a home, farm, a train and factory or mill, the group symbolizing the important fields that the American Bankers Association has served in this country. The various motifs are enclosed in an arch with milled edge suggesting a coin. (Information from the Postal Bulletin of December 1949). The Scott catalog number is 987.

Possibly the tiniest philatelic trains are on the two U.S. Nebraska flag stamps, and they are buried on the images of the great seal of the state – which is the essential design of the state flag. (opposite page). The themes of transportation, industry, settlement, and agriculture are depicted on Nebraska's seal. A railroad train steams across the background, with mountains in the distance. A steamboat plies the waters of the Missouri River. A simple cabin and sheaves of harvested wheat portray the importance of settlers and agriculture. A blacksmith works at his anvil in the foreground.

The 13¢ stamp, left, Scott 1669, was issued in the 50 State Flags pane on Feb. 23, 1976, as part of the bicentennial observances. U.S. state flags showed up again in 2010 on various dates in the form of coil stamps. The 44¢ stamp on the right came along in a strip with eight other states and an American flag. The Scott number is 4305, issued April 16, 2010

The trains-on-stamps collectors were quite excited over this last issue of a train on a stamp, however small. It was the first one on a United States stamp since 2002. More about it can be found in The Dispatcher No. 10-3, May-June 2010.

Back to trains on bridges – shown above is Spain, Scott 759 from 1948. A steam train with passenger cars crosses the Garganta de Pancorbo Viaduct to commemorate the Centenary of Spanish railways.

Described as an “electric engine with freight cars on a bridge” is the tiny train at right on the Russia stamp (Scott 4437), issued in 1976. The emblem refers to the Bicentenary anniversary of the city of Dnepropetrovsk in the Ukraine, and the bridge design is that of the Dnieper Bridge.

Tanzania's stamp, Scott 374 of July 27, 1987, honors “Ten Years of Communication & Transport in Tanzania” with emblems of the Tanzania Posts & Telecommunications on the right and the Tanzania Railways Corp. at the left with a very small locomotive and rail cars. That stamp is shown on the following page.

Below is a 1961 issue by Hungary (Scott 1389) with various means of transportation scattered across the design. A steam locomotive can be seen at the left, headed down. The design points to air, land and sea methods of carrying the mail. This particular stamp was issued for the Conference of Postal Ministers of Communist Countries meeting at Warsaw.

So, there is a sampling of tiny transportation – trains particularly. Doubtless there are many more. We invite you to write in with other stamps that might qualify in this category. It is all for fun!

A tiny train makes its way down a steep incline on this 1961 stamp from Hungary depicting various modes of mail transportation.

The image of a train is prominent on the seal shown on this 1987 stamp from Tanzania.

Here is an idea for a summer activity for your kids, or grandkids. Let them look through your collection of train stamps to see which ones are the smallest – suggest a prize for a list of five or more. Maybe ice cream, or pizza! ☺

[The stamp images here are not in scale with each other and have been randomly enlarged to make it easier to detect the tiny trains. Also, our appreciation to Scott publishing and various internet sites and authors for providing a wealth of assorted information on these stamps and their subjects.]

Casey Jones Railroad Unit

The Casey Jones Railroad Unit is ATA's oldest and very first study unit. The unit was officially formed at the "Casey Jones" U.S. stamp first-day ceremony on April 29, 1950, by D.D. Crocker and Charles J. Keenan. Members of this study unit collect railroadiana and everything on rail such as steam & diesel engines, funiculars, rail bridges, streetcars, subways and trolleys. The study unit has published its bimonthly newsletter, The Dispatcher, continuously since 1954 and has also produced several handbooks related to railroads and railway stamps.

The cost of membership in the United States is $15, $17 in Canada & Mexico, and $20 elsewhere. For membership information, contact: Roy W. Menninger MD, PO Box 5511, Topeka KS 66605-5511. He may be reached via email at: roymenn@sbcglobal.net. The study group's website is found at: www.uqp.de/cjr.

Americana Study Unit

David Kent explores "What is Americana?" in Americana Philatelic News, April-June 2014.

Kent found that some members want to include only stamps showing Americana on foreign stamps and that to be classified as Americana, the theme of the stamp issue had to also be related to that Americana subject. The author then shows several stamp issues with themes that were not issued specifically to be related to a particular Americana theme and how they might be collected as part of an Americana topic.

World War I Commemoratives

Barry N. Floyd

World War I was truly a cataclysmic event in world history. It began in August 1914 and, by the end of the year, fighting had spread across the globe. After appalling violence, a million men lay dead. The total number of military and civilian casualties in the conflict was over 36 million, of which 16 million were killed and 20 million wounded, averaging 6,500 deaths per day. It was the deadliest war in the story of mankind, the after effects of which are still being felt.

A number of European countries have chosen to mark the 100th anniversary of the outbreak of World War I this year with commemorative stamps.

retreat of its troops when faced with the formidable forces of Austro-Hungary, Germany and Bulgaria.

But perhaps the most colorful and poignant WWI commemorative issues thus far have come from Great Britain and the associated state of Jersey in the Channel Islands. It is these stamps that are the focus of this article.

From July 23 to Aug. 4, 1914, Britain was transformed from a country willing to watch a European war from the sidelines to a determined combatant. Prime Minister Herbert Asquith was inclined to obfuscate and delay decision-making, in the knowledge that most political crises blew over in a short time. His foreign secretary, Sir Edward Grey, was similarly inclined. Only when the Germans invaded Belgium – intent on attacking France – could they reluctantly acknowledge that Britain must act in support of its continental allies. It was Grey who memorably observed that “the lamps are going out all over Europe and we shall not see them lit again in our lifetime.” Meanwhile, the German kaiser declared: “we draw the sword with a clear conscience and clean hands,” while his chancellor queried: “just for a scrap of paper, Great Britain is going to make war on a kindred nation?”

The stamps featured with this article’s opening represent the first part of an epic five-year series that will commemorate each year of WWI, from its outbreak to the ultimate armistice. The issue pays tribute to all those who died for their country, both in WWI and in subsequent wars. The set will comprise 30 stamps in total, exploring every aspect of the conflict, from the determinism of the armed forces to the fortitude of those who served on the home front.

The first stamp in the first set shows a specially commissioned painting of a poppy. The artist was Fiona Strickland and it illustrates the fine texture and translucence of a poppy's petals. Previously associated with the powerful effects of opium – and detested by farmers as a stubborn weed – the pretty flower now served as a poignant symbol of "Remembrance." The bright red color of the flower appeared to evoke the blood of wounded men, offering an iconic representation of the bitter struggles taking place in the Flanders and Picardy regions of Belgium and Northern France.

"The significance of poppies in Remembrance... is largely attributed to Lieutenant Colonel John McCrae, a doctor serving those regions with the Canadian Armed Forces. The churned up soil, warmed by the spring sun, encouraged clusters of poppies to grow in the aftermath of the complete destruction of the battlefield. McCrae was deeply inspired and moved by what he saw and wrote the poem 'In Flanders Fields.'"<sup>(1)</sup>

When WWI was finally over, the British Legion adopted the poppy as a symbol of Remembrance in 1921, and the first Poppy Appeal was born. It is now the most recognizable charity appeal in the United Kingdom. A team of 50 people, most of them disabled and connected to the Armed Forces, produce the poppies. Contributions to the Appeal go towards helping veteran families and their descendants suffering from the conflicts of war. The Appeal continues annually and takes into account those requiring assistance from the more recent (and equally tragic) WWII.

Since 1919, and every year since, at 11:00 am on Nov. 11 (marking the time when the guns fell silent in 1918), a remembrance service is held at the Cenotaph War Memorial in Whitehall. Wreaths are laid and war veterans march in a poignant gesture of respect for their fallen comrades in all wars. The Cenotaph (meaning "Empty Tomb" in Greek) reads simply: "The Glorious Dead."

The second First Class stamp bears a fragment of a poem, carved in stone, by Laurence Binyon. He was a senior curator at the British Museum and was too old to enlist in the army, but he had published poems from an early age. In September 1914, the London Times published his seven-stanza poem, For the Fallen. At this time the British Expeditionary Force was in retreat, having suffered heavy losses at the Battle of Mons. Binyon's poem is still well known and, as an "Ode to Remembrance," its touching words are repeated orally by ex-servicemen across the country when attending comradely social gatherings.

The third First Class stamp features a touching portrait of Private William Cecil Tickle, an underage soldier who enlisted at the height of the recruiting rush on Sept. 7, 1914. At that time, Marshall Lord Kitchener's call to arms had met with an overwhelming response. While the pre-war British Army needed 30,000 recruits a year, at the peak of the recruiting rush this number enlisted in a single day.

Despite being underaged, Tickle managed to join the 9th Battalion of the Essex Regiment and, after training, he was deployed to France to join in the Battle of the Somme. Private Tickle and his comrades were hit by machine-gun fire and suffered heavy casualties. Among the dead was William Tickle. With no known grave, he is commemorated on the Thiepval Memorial in Northern France. In the stamp his smiling face reflects the youthful enthusiasm of the young man before he was sacrificed to the bitter reality of the war.

The first of the £1.47 stamps reproduces a painting, A Star Shell, by artist C.R.W. Nevinson. He saw service in France as a Red Cross orderly before joining the Royal Army Medical Corps. Invalided out, Nevinson became an official war artist. In A Star Shell he depicts the strange, unearthly light of an illuminating artillery flare by night. The shell's bright glow reveals a weird landscape of broken ground and barbed wire, capturing the disorienting alien nature of the battlefield.

By day, the scene was little different.

"All along the Western Front, faced by the lethal firepower of modern artillery, rifles and machine guns, soldiers dug trenches. These trenches, intended to provide temporary shelter from murderous shrapnel, high explosives and bullets, gave many advantages to the defence. Quickly shrouded in thickets of barbed wire and covered by the interlocking fire of machine guns and artillery, trenches became extremely difficult to attack successfully."<sup>(2)</sup>

The next £1.47 stamp shows The Response, otherwise known as the Renwick Memorial, serving as a monument to the volunteers of the Northumberland Fusiliers. It portrays the men marching to Newcastle railway station on their way to France. Led by drummers, they walk resolutely, some parting from sweethearts for, probably, the last time.

The third high-value stamp features Princess Mary's Gift Fund box. The Princess was the 17-year-old daughter of King George V. It was she who promoted the fund to cover the cost of 426,724 boxes to be given to British Service personnel on Christmas Day 1914. According to recipients, the embossed brass box contained items important to soldiers, such as a pipe, tobacco and cigarettes, chocolate and sweets, a Christmas card and a picture of Her Royal Highness. Many boxes have survived and have become distinctive mementos of the war's first Christmas.

Six Stamps of Jersey & Miniature Sheet, 2014

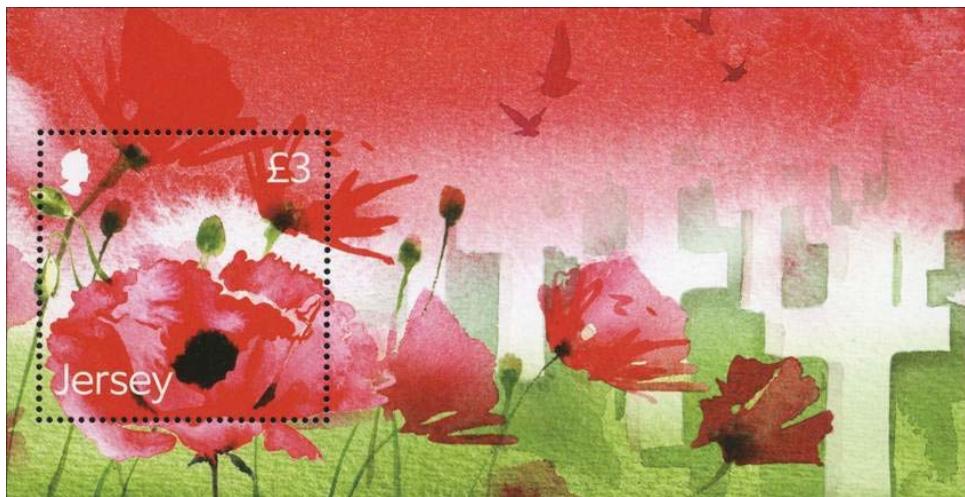

The set of six Jersey stamps and miniature sheet all contain artistic representations of poppies as the symbols of Remembrance. A novel feature is the inclusion on each of the two lower value stamps (46p and 56p) of actual poppy seeds. This is the first time that this print technique had been used on British stamps. The seeds have been sealed behind a thin, transparent, biodegradable plastic cover on the face of the stamps, which can be planted, and will gradually decompose as the seeds start to grow. The mature plant will eventually produce the striking red flowers so strongly associated with WWI.

From sales of this issue, Jersey Post makes a donation to the island's branch of the British Legion. And, for collectors unwilling to break up their commemorative set, it is possible to purchase a special seed set packet for planting with, again, Jersey Post donating 75p per packet to the Legion.

The 46p stamp shows, in the background, a group of soldiers in close touch – shoulder to shoulder – suffering the aftermath of being gassed by the Germans. The 62p stamp features the eternal flame at a monument to an unknown warrior. Westminster Abbey, London, contains the grave of an unidentified British soldier, chosen from unknown servicemen exhumed from four WWI battle areas: the Aisne, the Somme, Arras and Ypres. The 70p stamp depicts a rifleman at the center of a poppy, preparing to charge with fixed bayonet, while the 82p stamp shows the Victoria Cross (VC), the highest military decoration awarded for valor “in the face of the enemy” to members of the armed forces of Great Britain and the Commonwealth countries. The high value 91p stamp illustrates three soldiers charging towards the enemy having cut through barbed wire obstacles in the foreground.

The £3.00 Miniature Sheet

The £3 miniature sheet presents an artistic representation of the poem by John McCrae, the previously mentioned Flanders Fields. Its verses are both moving and memorable:

*In Flanders' fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That marks our place: and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved, and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders' Fields.
Take up our quarrel with the foe;
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high,
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders' Fields.”*

We trust this short article on commemorative stamps marking WWI will encourage other collectors to pursue the topic or, if already dedicated to the theme, to add the British and other contemporary European issues to their sets, thus enlarging and enhancing their philatelic coverage of the most momentous event in human history.

Grateful acknowledgment is made for information relating to the featured stamps which appears in presentation packs for Great Britain and Jersey WWI commemoratives.

This article is dedicated to the memory of my father, L.G. Floyd, who served with the British Army as a sapper in the trenches of Belgium and Northern France throughout WWI. He rose from the ranks to become a Second Lieutenant and, due to his training as an electrical engineer before enlistment, he was able to assist in maintaining communications between the front line and rear H.Q., while also fusing mines beneath enemy lines. His survival among the fearful casualties of the war was a matter of utmost good fortune and of particular importance to his subsequent offspring. ■

✓ Checklist Notes

More and more ATA members are discovering the good things to be found within the checklist dATABse developed by Karen Cartier. In fact, 157 members have ordered 544 checklists since the first of May when the dATABse went “live.” The orders have kept the office staff quite busy this summer, but most checklists have gone out within 24 hours of receipt of the order.

As mentioned in last month’s column, some of the new checklists have missing items that were included in our older checklists. ATA members who have ordered checklists – and others who have simply volunteered to assist – have been most helpful in providing the information needed so the missing items can be added quickly. Everyone who assists will, of course, receive the newly expanded list at no additional cost.

Karen and Michael Cartier designed the new checklist dATABse with one most helpful and interesting feature: that is the ability to easily create a checklist on any topic by typing in a “key word” or “key words.” The resulting list consists of every dATABse item that contains the word or words in its description. More than 50 customized checklists have already been created for ATA members, and rave reviews have resulted.

Here are some random examples of customized checklists that the ATA Office has created for our members, along with the number of items in the resulting lists: 2012 London Olympics (364), amateur radio (28), Apollo XII (55), Atlantis (24), Bible (199), Black Forest (7), Boer War (9), campfire (29), cancer (169), cassia (105), commiphora (6), diphtheria (2), Douglas Fir/fir trees (30), Escher (12), fairies (15), fever (24), frankincense (5), Gerald Ford (15), Goofy (63), John Wayne (17), Les Demoiselles d’Avignon (11), plague (16), Roy Lichtenstein (6), Rudyard

Kipling (27), Saint Rose of Lima (4), salmon (60), saxophone (25), slave/slavery (56), sphinx (130), trout (108), witches (102), Yosemite (19).

The cost of a customized checklist is the same as a regular list: 50¢ for lists of fewer than 50 items and a penny per listing for lists of more than 50 items, with a $50 cap for lists containing thousands of items.

No matter how obscure your topic, ATA can help you find stamps to fit it! Email or call the ATA Office to order customized checklists for your collection!

New ATA Checklists—Nature Categories

This listing includes all of the nature-related checklists in the new ATA offerings. The checklists are divided into categories, then listed alphabetically. The number shown after each checklist title is the number of stamps or other philatelic items in the list.

Note: If a checklist title includes the wording “misc/other,” that list includes items that are not included in the other checklists in the category. For instance, the Artists (misc/other) list contains only items not related to the individual artists in the category.

(CULTURE and TECHNOLOGY lists also available) Date compiled: Aug. 24, 2014.

Policy for checklist use. All American Topical Association (ATA) checklists are the property of the ATA, intended for use by members and to promote topical collecting. These checklists are copyrighted and are not to be copied except by the ATA for distribution to its members. Portions of a checklist may be used as part of a philatelic article or column if credit is given to the American Topical Association.

While every effort is made to provide accurate and timely checklists, the ATA cannot guarantee that these checklists are complete or error free. Questions on the use of a checklist should be directed to the ATA Office. Members finding errors or omissions are encouraged to send amending information to the ATA Office to improve upon this members-only service. Please use the Stamp ID number in the first column of each list to reference suggested changes.

The number in parentheses after the checklist title is the number of stamp issues that appears in the checklist. Costs for the checklists are:

Emailed (Excel file, or .pdf file if requested): A penny per issue. Thus, a checklist with 195 stamp listings costs $1.95.

Mini-topics (less than 50 items) cost 50¢.

Maxi-topics (more than 5,000 items) cost $50 flat fee.

Mailed: For every 500 listings, please add $2 for printing/postage.

Checklist Updates: Always available for 50¢-$1/list as long as ATA membership is maintained. ☐

Obituary: Ann Shoemake

Ann Shoemake, second editor of Topical Time, died in Albuquerque, N.M., on March 28. A life member of the ATA since 1970, Ann served as editor 1977-81, succeeding ATA founder Jerry Husak, with whom she had worked closely in the preparation of cachets, special cancels and numerous ATA publications. She brought to the editorship a college major in advertising design and many years experience in publication, graphic art and printing. Ann's topical interests included astronomy, overprints and surcharges. She was named Distinguished Topical Philatelist in 1981. □

NY 2016 Updated Information

New information about World Stamp Show-NY 2016 recently appeared with the publication of its fifth quarterly newsletter, timed to coincide with APS StampShow 2014, which took place in Hartford, Conn.

America's next once-a-decade international philatelic exhibition is only 21 months away, a point noted by show President Wade Saadi, who mentioned that much continues behind the scenes, including negotiations regarding FIP patronage. These negotiations have taken much longer than expected.

Executive Director Donna Richardson reports the first public news about hotel discounts arranged through the show's accommodation agent, Experient. Prices range from $139-$425 per night for the properties under consideration at this point, all either near the convention center or within walking distance of public transportation to the venue.

The show currently has 121 dealers signed up from 17 countries around the world. Additional dealers are being sought to provide additional balance to the show's bourse. Invitations to international postal administrations and their agents will be sent soon.

Also announced are the initial three firms that plan to hold major auctions during World Stamp Show-NY 2016. These include Robert A. Siegel Auction Galleries and Daniel F. Kelleher Auctions of the United States, and Auktionshaus Christoph Gärtner of Germany.

The four-page newsletter also includes articles about the show's web site facelift, June's New York City auction of the famous 1856 1¢ British Guiana Penny Magenta, the Philatelic Foundation's "New York City on Stamps" publication, a historical look back at the first U.S. international exhibition in 1913 and a public "thank you" to those websites, publications and show listings that are currently promoting the impending international eight-day event.

The exhibition will take place May 28-June 4, 2016, at the Jacob Javits Convention Center in New York City. For more information, visit the show's web site at www.ny2016.org and on Facebook: www.facebook.com/ny2016. ☐

Ann Arbor Stamp Club (ATA Chapter No. 98) in Ann Arbor, Mich.: The May AASC reported on upcoming meetings and the minutes of the April meeting. The first auction of the year was scheduled for the May 19 meeting. The program was to be by Mike Miley Jr. – “The First U.S. Issues.” Editor Harry Winter reported in the June issue that the program would be “Stamp Papers,” by Gene Stutzenstein.

The August meeting was to be a planning session for the AAPEX ’14 show.

ATA Chapter No. 5 in Wisconsin: Upcoming meetings were to include a program by Stan Ewert, “Ephemera,” and discussion of upcoming Wiscopex 2014.

Editor Robert Mather also reminded members to attend Tripex in June. He continued with a short history of “The Star Spangled Banner,” showed some stamps and the poem by Francis Scott Key that became the national anthem of the United States. Other articles included “The Penny Magenta of British Guiana,” (which was to be auctioned in June), “The Minuteman War Savings Stamps” and a report of the April meeting. According to the editor, Ann Selzer agreed to give a program titled “New Zealand: Sights, Sounds and Stories." A short story was printed about "The Stamps Made from Stolen Maps" during World War I. Next appeared an article about "Reperforation," copied from the Philatelic Foundation Quarterly, followed by a page from the upcoming Spink Auction about the sale of one of the Inverted Jenny stamps.

Battle Creek Stamp Club (ATA Chapter No. 119) in Battle Creek, Mich.: Editor Steve Sherman reminded members of the May 8 meeting and had several short stories and an observation about "Spring is Crawling" – starting with a mystery about a New Zealand stamp, Scott 107, from 1902-07 issues. This followed with the idea of collecting tractors and some substitutes used in other parts of the globe.

According to the editor, the May meeting was a great success with 20 members in attendance.

Lee Nelson wrote about "A Cover Story from the Past." This is about the story behind a very old Michigan cover that was carried "outside of the mail," probably as a favor by the captain of the steamer Julius Morton. Steve Sherman wrote about his way of collecting, for nearly 50 years, and how he stored his stamps and cataloged them before the use of the computer.

Greater Mound City Stamp Club (ATA Chapter No. 115) in St. Louis, Mo.: The April Perf-Dispatch reminded members about a program by Guy Gasser, "Is It Sound: how to use the right tools of the hobby." A list of upcoming programs for 2014 was published. The St. Charles Spring Stamp Show was held at the end of May. On a sad note, three long-time members had passed away in recent months.

Alan Barasch tested his presentation for the Penguins on Stamps Study Group at NTSS at the May meeting. It was thought this should be interesting, since Alan does not collect nor know the nuances of penguins (the topic was assigned). The June edition of Perf-Dispatch continued with a reminder of meetings and programs.

Johnstown Stamp Club (ATA Chapter No. 4) in Johnstown, Pa.: Editor Don Smith reminded members that the June meeting would be the annual "Club Members as Dealers" – a great opportunity to dispose of your excess holdings. The March meeting had a fascinating program by Mary Anne Bell on the lighthouse stamps of the "Life Insurance" agency of the New Zealand government. The "Silent Auction" during the April meeting was handled by Mike Buben. More than $200 worth of materials changed hands. A list of upcoming shows was published and information on upcoming new U.S. issues. Editor Don also had a short article about U.S. No. 1 and No. 2.

Knoxville Philatelic Society (ATA Chapter No. 121) in Knoxville, Tenn.: Editor Tom Broadhead started with an observation of "Will common U.S. stamps play hard to get?" He discussed the newly issued fern coil stamps that are only available in coils of 3,000. This was followed by the President's Column (Tom Ringenbach) about the upcoming elections. Tom looked back over the past two years that he was president and the enjoyment of doing so. Tom, as acting secretary, published the minutes of the April meeting. Several small notes and an article by Steve Swain about "Postal Artifacts of the 1910 Knoxville Appalachian Exposition" followed. The June edition of Knoxville Philatelic Society News started with the question to members: "What will be the KnoxPex 2015 Theme?" Two possibilities were given: 1815 – The Battle of New Orleans and 1915 – National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics (Later NASA). Newly elected president Barbara Stevenson introduced herself in the President's Column. A copy of the May meeting minutes was published together with several small announcements and upcoming events/meetings. Tom Ringebach wrote about "Collecting stamps in Cleveland."

Mid-Cities Stamp Club (ATA Chapter No. 90) in Arlington, Texas: Editor Peter Elias started the May issue of Stamping Around, writing about the Automated Postal Center stamp for Spiderman and the first-day ceremony in Dallas for the Songbirds stamp issue. Benedict A. Termini, M.D., followed with an article about cinderellas and revenue material, "The Townsend Plan." This was followed with minutes and announcements from the Arlington, Irving and Lake Grandbury meetings. Ray Cartier touched on National Parks Centennial Issue City of Refuge, Hawaii, and about "The First Home-Built Aircraft to fly around the World." The June issue of Stamping Around began with an article by Peter Elias about Internet market make-up rate stamps from Germany. He also wrote about a Nigerian youth stamp club and, no, not part of the famous Nigerian mail fraud scams. President Mike Smith followed with his usual "President's Letter." Ben Termini closed with a fine write-up about the Swedish booklet issue for the "Disaster at Sea."

Milwaukee Philatelic Society (ATA Chapter No. 112) in Wisconsin: The May Milwaukee Philatelist began with an acknowledgement by editor Carol Schutta that an error had occurred in the MPS meeting. The program for this month will be by Art Schmitz about "The Dead Country Syndrome." This was followed by another article about the newly issued songbirds. The May issue closed with a photo gallery of the newly elected officers. The June program was a PowerPoint program by the Rocky Mountain Philatelic Library, Dragon Lore on Stamps. Secretary MaryAnn Bowman published the MPS Executive Board Meeting minutes and newly elected president Carol Schutta gave her view for the upcoming year. Short articles followed; "Vintage Circus Posters" (newly issued stamps) and Milwaukee's "Maverick Aviator."

Motor City Stamp and Cover Club (ATA Chapter No. 95) in Detroit, Mich.: Editor Bob Quintero reminded members that April is the month for the annual "Cover Scramble." The rest of the April issue of On Cover was devoted to announcements, upcoming programs and past meeting minutes. The May issue of On Cover mentioned the club's 57th birthday and the controversial activity, "Members' Clothesline Exhibit." The May speaker was to be Paul Stanton, collector and dealer and Motomoney auctioneer. A list of meetings and programs for the 2014 was published.

In the June issue of On Cover, editor Bob Quintero, reminded members that June is the traditional auction time for the club and that Paul Stanton is the host auctioneer. July will be the annual picnic. A list of programs for the rest of the year was published and many birthdays were remembered. At the May meeting, member Fred Levantrosser showed a cover that made a miraculous journey from Canada to Europe. It was carried aboard a small sailboat on a solo trip to England, which blew off course to Portugal where it was stamped and canceled with an explanation of the adventure.

Philatelic Society of Lancaster County (ATA Chapter No. 118) in Lancaster, Pa.: President Len Kasper opened the newsletter with his monthly comment. This was followed by an article, "Rogue River Boat," by Bob and Barb Brown and a short biography of club member Mark Hollister. The May minutes and treasury report by Joy Bouchard and Lou DiFelice followed. Editor Paul Petersen commented more on the 2013 Harry Potter issues. It was announced that the annual club trip 2014 will be a visit to the National Postage Stamp Show in New York. Carol Peterson closed the newsletter with "Guest Musings: Return to the '64 Fair."

Robert C. Graebner Chapter No. 17, AFCDS (ATA Chapter No.

93) in Washington, D.C.: May Day Taylor started off the Graebner Gazette commenting on the club's visit to the Smithsonian National Postal Museum for the May 2, 1840, Penny Black remembrance. The June meeting featured a program presented by Rick Gibson and Otto Thamasett on "Revisiting Staehle Covers." Some nice copies are printed in this issue. A press release followed about the new upcoming exhibit at the National Postal Museum, Behind the Badge. Foster Miller discussed the newly issued 70¢ C. Alfred "Chief" Anderson definitive stamp ("Chief Anderson takes flight"). This dedication was held at the McPherson Auditorium of Bryn Mawr College in Bryn Mawr, Pa. A schedule was published about Napex 2014 and the attending societies. Short announcements and comments followed about upcoming shows, AFDCS auctions at Americover 2014 and upcoming cachets. The Graebner Gazette closed with the announcement that ATA president Jack Denys will receive the highest ATA Award at this year's NTSS show.

Rochester Philatelic Association

(ATA Chapter No. 84) in Rochester, N.Y.: The April-June issue of Hinges & Tongs included an update on Ropex 2014. Larry Rausch wrote about "Hand Cancel Dies," with many examples shown. Club president Rich Spinelli was the featured speaker at the February meeting and "Revisited Exhibiting Basics." Rich also had his monthly President's message which, again, touched upon the upcoming show. This was followed by an overview of RPA meetings and dates. Several letters to the club were published from other organizations and club members, with thank you notes or acknowledgements to the Rochester Stamp Club. A presentation by Mark Scheuer was enjoyed about “Year Dating 1847 Issue Covers.” This year’s Ropex featured an exhibit from Charles Lawlor, Australia, about Western Australia: Use & Abuse of the Post, 1831-1912. The newsletter closed with the announcement of U.S. and Canada new issues.

Salem Stamp Society (ATA Chapter No. 114) in Salem, Ore.: The April meeting of the Salem Stamp Society attracted many members with the topic “how to attend a stamp show.” The May meeting is dedicated to members who are encouraged to bring some of their materials and doubles and be a dealer for one night. President Lisa Janz’s column touched on Pipex

2014. Other small tidbits included vice president Alan Maul announcing a second club stamp workshop on how to sell your stamps. The June meeting was a big club auction night. President Lisa Janz had her usual messages to the members. Alan Maul published his “Stamp Workshop No. 2.”

Stamp Collectors Club of Toledo (ATA Chapter No. 66) in Toledo, Ohio: The April edition of Frogtown Philatelist contained notes from recent meetings, local shows and an upcoming event.

Members are encouraged to attend a workshop regarding exhibit frames. The annual picnic was scheduled for June 19. The May 15 meeting had 27 members in attendance; there was no program due to miscommunication, but the June 5 meeting was a Mega Auction.

Topical Philatelists in Colorado (ATA Chapter No. 78) in Denver, Colo.: The May edition of TOPIC commented on the April meeting motion to disband the club due to lack of attendance and participation. There was a lengthy and heated discussion on the subject. After a long discussion, it was decided to put the vote to the entire membership with a final vote being taken at the May meeting. The May meeting was to be held during the Rocky Mountain Stamp Show. The program, “The European Union,” was be presented by Tonny Van Loij. The June Topic published the results of the vote to disband: six for and six against. It was decided at the May meeting that the club would continue with those members who are still interested. At the June meeting officers will be nominated and elections will be held in September if interest in the organization continuous.

Venice Stamp Club (ATA Chapter No. 122) in Venice, Fla.: The May Newsletter started with a reply by John Hamman about the many favorable comments he received about last month's article, "Prexie Post." The May 20 meeting was dedicated to "Conservation and Rationing during the World Wars," by Dawn Hamman. Secretary Lance S. Grandone published the April meeting minutes and Jim Garard reported on the treasury. Upcoming shows and meetings were listed as well as the planning of a youth program. John Hamman continued his article about "Prexie Post." June 17 was scheduled for an auction. An overview was published with upcoming meetings, shows and programs.

West Suburban Stamp Club

(ATA Chapter No. 44) in Plymouth, Mich.: Editor Sandy Strzalkowski started the May issue of Mayflower Minutes calling out the 12 remaining club members who not have paid 2014 dues. Debbie Chapman is recovering from knee replacement and will have a second done later in the month. Jeff Cole also is recuperating from surgery. Best wishes to all. A call was made for nominations for upcoming officer elections. Thanks went out to Kim Kellerman of Rasdale Stamp Co. for a donation to the club. Doug Becker presented the April program, "Jenny Past and Present." The June issue of Mayflower Minutes reported that dues season is over and the club has a total of 114 members. Two new members joined during the Plymouth Show.

Wisconsin Federation of Stamp Clubs

(ATA Chapter No. 107) in Wisconsin: The May/June issue of Across the Fence Post started with the president's message by WFSC president Karen Weigt. Part of her column was about the first-day ceremony for the Wisconsin Statehood stamp in 1998. The featured article by Robert R. Henak was "Waukesha Moor (MUD)

Bath Company." He showed pictures of an advertising corner card for the company and a picture postcard of the main building. Maurice Wozniak had a column, "Clubs are Trump." On a sad note, collector, exhibitor and philatelic judge Bernard A. "Bud" Hennig (1917-2014) of Chicago died March 30 at age 97. The newsletter ended with a list of announcements and an advertisement for the upcoming Tripex Stamp Fair 2014.

Canada

Calgary Philatelic Society (ATA

Chapter No. 91) in Calgary, Alberta: The front page of the June Calgary Philatelist showed a commemorative envelope issued by Canada Post to mark the centennial of the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry Brigade. The regiment was stationed in Calgary for many decades. The third part of Donald Wilson's "A Philatelist's Journey in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan," appeared, with many stamps and covers. Dale Spiers continued his publication (part 30) about Calgary postmarks.

Leanteri Polvikoski followed with part two of her "Fake Covers in Hollywood." Editor Dale Spiers wrote about the recent decision by Canada Post to allow pictorial designs on addressed Admail permits. This brought many new designs. New by-laws are to be voted on at the June meeting and a report was given on the Calgary Association of Philatelic Exhibitors (CAPE). The newsletter ended with a large overview of upcoming meetings, programs and shows.

Greater Toronto Area Philatelic

Alliance (ATA Chapter No. 109) in Toronto, Ont.: Editor Susan Butler opened the spring edition of Philajournal with encouraging members to get out and attend some shows. Larry Friend, in his "President's Viewpoint," touched on “Selling Your Stamps.” Peter Butler, FRPSC, looked back on an article that appeared in Topical Time Nov-Dec 2013, about stamp collecting, “Time and Patience.” Dave Moss had his recurring “MACHIN Corner: Royal Mail Security Features.” Jerry Piotrowski wrote about “Unusual Postage Stamps, from Pop-Ups to Magnets!” Member of Scarborough Stamp Club, Ron Dell’Agnese, presented an article, “The Stamps of Trieste 1943-1954” and Lloyd Yamada wrote about “Cinderella Philately, Exploring Revenues.” Larry Friend contributed “British Locals – a fascinating collecting interest” and Tony Manson followed with “Scouts on Stamps: A Scouting Centennial Project.” Ingo Nessel is the recipient of the 2013 Howard Bryce Memorial Trophy. The Philajournal ended with two more articles: “Philatelic Elements: Mosaic Block or Strip,” by Frank Alusio, and “FRPSC and Coveting Covers, Postal Expediency after the Coup,” by John Wilson.

Great Britain

British Thematic Association (ATA Chapter No. 100) in Great Britain: The June issue of Themescene started with an editorial by editor Wendy Buckle. This was followed by Steven Cross with “A History of the Fictional Detective.” Jeff Dugdale looked behind the words of an iconic song by Julia

Ward Howe. John Hayward’s article, “Back to Basics,” discussed the basics of philately and thematic collecting. The annual general meeting of the British Thematic Association was to be held June 14. Jim Etherington wrote about how he moved from traditional to thematic collecting – slowly. There was an extensive list of upcoming shows and meetings, as well as special hand stamps. A book review was done by Ken Norris and Stanley Brown while Lisa Whittle wrote about JUST4KIDS. The annual British Thematic Association 2014 competitions will be held at The South England Stamp Fair and Sussex Convention on Oct. 11.

South Africa

Thematics South Africa (ATA

Chapter No. 103) in South Africa: Contributors to ThemNews are many. President Robert Harm started with his President’s View, followed by comments of Vice-President/Acting Editor Wobbe Vegter. Tony Evans wrote about “Diceros bicornis – the Black Rhino.” Henk Geertsema followed with “Lepidopterous philately: Butterflies and Moths of South Africa.” Stan Rowland presented an article, “The Sea Eagle,” with many copies of stamps. Henk van Zutphen wrote, “ROYGRBLIV – fantastic rainbows on stamps,” and Gina Wilgenbus finished with “Points to Ponder when Exhibiting.” ☐

Tonny van Loij, retired, is ATA Chapter Coordinator, president of the Aurora Stamp Club, executive secretary of the Europa Study Unit and secretary of Rompex. His mailing address is 3002 S. Xanthia St, Denver CO 80231. His email address is tvanloij@gmail.com.

Publication Reviews

George B. Griffenhagen

Once again, due to lack of material, Publication Reviews will not appear in this issue. Please look for it in the November-December Topical Time. ☐

Readers of Topical Time who know of other topical articles published in less well-known periodicals are urged to send photocopies or tear sheets of the article to George Griffenhagen, 12226 Cathedral Dr, Woodbridge VA 22192-2232, or via email: gbgriffenhagen@gmail.com, for mention in future "Publication Reviews" columns.

George Griffenhagen was longtime ATA board member and former editor of Topical Time. You may reach him at the previously given address.

Please make it a goal to recruit at least one new member this year... Help us go "Boldly to the Future!"

Editorial Content

For editorial content of Topical Time, write to Wayne L. Youngblood, editor. Opinions expressed are those of the authors and not necessarily those of ATA, its officers or staff. Neither the ATA nor its officers assume responsibility for individual dealings with or between members.

Letters to the editor, features and short pieces are always welcomed, as long as they are strongly related to topical and thematic stamp collecting and add to the knowledge base of the hobby.

Unless otherwise noted, all catalog numbers are from the copyrighted Scott Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue, used with express permission of – and under license from – Amos Press of Sidney, Ohio.

Membership Information

For ATA membership information, change of address, ATA publication orders, back issues of Topical Time or ATA handbooks, contact the ATA Office. All copies of the 2011-13 ATA Membership Directory have been sold; the 2014-16 ATA Membership Directory should be published later this year and available from the ATA Office.

The American Topical Association is recognized as a tax-exempt organization under Section 501(c)(3) of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code.

The NTSS 2014 cachet artist was Thomas Minor. Tom designs the cachets for his local WSP show, the St. Louis Stamp Expo, and has a loyal following. Cancellations are by Chris Lazaroff, cachetmaker and former president of AFDCS. Thanks to Tom and Chris, who are both long-time members of ATA. See p. 34 of the July-August issue of Topical Time for more information.

LIMITED EDITION CACHETS

John Colasanti produced 25 numbered Limited Edition Cachets for ATA, and donated all the costs for production. John's work is much in demand among first day cover collectors. He won ATA's cachet contest in 2011 and is a past member of the Board of Directors of the American First Day Cover Society and current President of the Cachet Makers Association. A few complete sets are still available (three cachets, all with same number). If you want a matched set, do order soon! See p. 34 of the July-August issue of Topical Time.
